CONGRESS MAY LIMIT FUNDS FOR PRIMARY

Borah's Statement Is Opening
Gun in Fight to Curb Expenditures

MAY ACT NEXT SESSION

Expect Insurgents to Press
Advantage; May Lack Democratic Support

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1926, by the Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Laws limiting the expenditure of funds in the primary as well as final election for United States senator are almost certain to be passed at the next session of congress. Senator Borah's statement is the opening gun in a fight that recalls the peculiar way in which a proposal to limit campaign expenditures was filibustered to death in the closing hours of the last session.

VIEW FROM ANOTHER ANGLE

For although the supreme court of the United States in the Newberry case appeared to deny the right of congress to exercise a jurisdiction over primary elections, the statute which was being considered at the time was passed before the seventeenth amendment to the constitution was adopted and hence Mr. Borah insists a trial of the whole question from a new angle is desirable.

So far as public sentiment is concerned, members of both the house and senate know now that the revelations in Pennsylvania as to the high costs of primaries have produced an unfavorable impression and that it will be difficult to explain a vote against proposals to limit election or primary expenditures.

EXPECT ACTION NEXT SESSION

Whether the debate will have any effect on the present legislative session, William V. Vare, senator-elect from Illinois and Pennsylvania, remains to be seen. The chances are that the proposals will be voted on in the session of congress which begins next month, while Messrs. Vare and Smith are not present their credentials until December, 1927. The mere fact that congress deems it necessary to pass legislation on the subject is bound to be regarded by the friends of Mr. Vare and Mr. Smith as a confession that no statutes now in existence were violative of the constitution.

The insurgent Republicans will naturally press for any advantage possible in the awkward situation but if it is assumed that the southern Democrats wish to vote with the insurgent Republicans on this issue, such an assumption is premature.

Some of the southern Democrats are not too anxious to have the federal government inquire into primary elections for in the south a primary result is the equivalent of an election. And if the federal government can say how much money is spent in a primary election to the United States, it may also to specify who shall and shall not vote. This question of voting qualifications has been jealously guarded by the states and it is unlikely that a federal encroachment will be tolerated.

That Members of Party
Stop Making Trouble

They are Miss Lolo Fuller, war-time friend of Marie; her press secretary, Miss Mary Mitchell; her secretary, Miss Gabrielle Bloch; Miss Birkhead, who became ill Monday, after a series of conferences with Col. The Kaukauna-Appleton high school football game at Kaukauna on Thursday afternoon will start at 2 o'clock instead of 2:45, as was previously planned. The time was changed because of the uncertain weather at this time of the year and it was feared that it might become too dark to finish the game if it were started at 2:45.

ITALY OFFERS REGRETS FOR MOB ATTACK

Mussolini Tells French Ambassador That Guilty
Will Be Punished

Paris—(P)—Premier Mussolini of Italy, has presented his regrets to the French ambassador in Rome for the recent incident at Ventimiglia in which the French consulate was reportedly attacked by Fascists, the foreign office let it be known Tuesday.

Mussolini told Ambassador Bessard that he had ordered the authorities at Ventimiglia to get judicial machinery in motion and speed up the trial of the man named Carvin and others who might be responsible for the attack on the consulate.

Regarding the incident at Benghazi, Tripoli, Mussolini told M. Bessard he had admonished the colonel of engineers who, according to reports, forced the French consul to hoist an Italian flag alongside the French colors on the consulate.

The premier added that rigorous orders had been issued to prevent repetition of the two affairs.

The French foreign office announces that, in view of this report, forced the French consul to hoist an Italian flag alongside the French colors on the consulate.

This visibly eases the situation between Paris and Rome as the recent Garibaldi affair, involving Anti-Fascist activities on the Riviera, and the participation of Italians in the recent unsuccessful Catalan plot on French soil, are considered purely police matters.

ACQUIT CHARITY WARD OF MURDERING PIANIST

Monticello, N. Y.—(P)—Charles Wise, 16-year-old Brooklyn charity ward, Tuesday broke up the threads of his girl life in Sullivan county and abruptly last summer with his arrest on a charge of murder.

After deliberating more than three hours, a jury Monday night acquitted the boy of the murder last July of Nina Vilona, 55, Mount Vernon pianist. Miss Vilona's body, a bullet wound to the head and a gash on the forehead, was found beneath a pile of stones beside the Neversink river, and the boy was arrested a week later. The state's case was based largely on circumstantial evidence.

AIR EXPRESS WILL TRAVEL ROUTES OF OLD PONY SERVICE

New York—(P)—In a network of airplane express routes, machines will fly night and day to speed delivery of packages once carried by the pony express of pioneer days.

The National Air Transport, Inc., has signed a contract with the American Railway Express to begin delivery by April 15, 1927, of packages by air between New York and Dallas, via Chicago and intermediate points. Robert E. M. Cowl, president of the express company announces.

The National Air Transport already has been transporting mail for the government on these and other routes since May. It is contemplated that express packages sometimes will be shipped in the same planes with air mail. It is expected that an entire day may be saved in package delivery on each of the two routes.

U. S. CITIZENS ADVANCE HUGE SUMS ABROAD

American Loans to Foreign Nations Now in Excess of Ten Billions

New York—(P)—The great strides which Wall Street, financial heart of the United States, has made in supplanting London as the world's money lender were measured Tuesday in an estimate by bankers here that will over one billion dollars in gold will be lent to foreign borrowers in 1926 by the American people.

This golden stream, which once seeped principally from sources along the Atlantic seaboard, now flows in large volume from the reservoir of savings in the great midwest and on the Pacific coast.

Out of this vast sum Europe will fashion a financial crutch to support the final work of restoration from the world war. American loans to the world are now said to exceed $10,000,000,000, and it is this pecuniary interest that is fast gaining the American people want bankers call the international mind. Nearly $1,000,000,000 had been lent in alien lands in the last three years.

EXPECT FRENCH LOAN
France is expected to come into the American money market early next year for large sums to aid in pegging the franc at some undetermined stabilization point and to replenish working capital for her industries.

France will not be permitted to borrow here until the debt agreement has been ratified by the French chamber of deputies. The Morgan syndicate, which floated the recent Belgian stabilization loan of $50,000,000 will, it is anticipated, handle the major financing of the French republic.

PROFIT IN MARKETING
Purchases of foreign securities on the New York Stock exchange have reached a daily total of $7,000,000 and Wall Street banks and allied institutions have made millions in the marketing of foreign bonds. The margin in this profitable business, however, is diminishing.

Borrowing nations of Europe have had to pay a stiff toll for money accommodation, for the American public had to be educated to purchase this class of securities. The bankers and distributors of the recent $50,000,000 Belgian loan are reported to have made approximately $2,500,000, less the cost of overhead and distribution.

No Organized Cheating In Bar Exams, Court Says

Several Candidates Excluded for Dishonest Methods in July Tests

Madison—(P)—Charges of organized cheating by Wisconsin bar candidates during the July examinations were found to be unsubstantiated and unfounded in an opinion handed down Tuesday by Justice Christian Doerflinger of the State Supreme court.

The investigation of alleged discrepancies in the examination began after an anonymous letter was received by members of the supreme court and the Capital Times, local newspaper charging a well-organized and systematized plan on the part of many candidates to cheat on the examination. Although the facts uncovered in the investigation failed to substantiate the wholesale charges, the opinion stated that there was sufficient evidence to exclude several candidates from admission to the bar because of dishonest methods.

Similarly in answers and the admission of several witnesses that they had secured information from other candidates was the cause for the failure of several. The publicity surrounding the investigation was deplored by the court.

Preliminary hearing of the charges was carried on by E. J. Reynolds of the Dane-co bar and Philip LaFollette, district attorney of Dane-co. After testifying that they had received no outside assistance during the examination, several candidates changed their testimony and admitted that unfair practices had been partly responsible for passing grades. In such cases they were refused admission to the bar. Many of those admitting cheating failed to pass the examination in spite of their dishonest efforts.

FINGER MARKS EXAMINED IN MILLS MURDER

Experts Identify Print on Slain Rector's Card as
That of Stevens

Somerville, N. J.—(P)—With only two witnesses testifying, a calling card of the Rev. Edward W. Hall, found near his body, was the basis for practically the entire discussion of the morning session of the Halls-Mills case Tuesday.

Two of the state's expert fingerprint witnesses, Joseph A. Faurot, New York, and Edward Schwartz of Newark, repeated under cross-examination their testimony, given on direct examination, that a finger print on the card is that of Willie Stevens, a defendant in the case with his sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and brother, Henry Stevens.

CALL FOR WITNESSES
Witnesses from far and near are being called by Alexander Simpson, special state prosecutor in the murder trial to keep his case under way until he can call Mrs. Jane Gibson, his star witness.

The admittedly "jigsaw puzzle" manner in which the prosecutor has been building his case, stands him in good stead as day after day passes without sufficient improvement in Mrs. Gibson's condition to permit her to be brought into the court room. Witnesses have been brought from a number of defense witnesses and from a dozen towns in New Jersey to build the legal wall, which the defense, when its turn comes, will assail with about 60 witnesses.

While the defense has given no inkling of its plans, the nature of much of the state's evidence will require quite a number of defense witnesses to give testimony in establishing alibis for the three defendants, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens.

SUBMIT DOCUMENTS IN DIVERSION SUIT

Evidence in Great Lakes Water
Case Is Filed With Special Master Hughes

Washington, D. C.—(P)—Counsel for opposing states in the fight over Great Lake water diversion by Illinois and the Chicago Sanitary district Tuesday submitted for record purposes voluminous documents prepared by army engineers, and other officials.

Newton D. Reed, chief legal adviser to the complainant states, was given the first opportunity by Charles Evans Hughes, acting as special master, to put in documentary evidence in support of the injunction suit brought to prevent diversion. Former Solicitor General James M. Beck and his battery of legal aides reserved objections to the submission of most of the documents introduced by the defense. He appeared to be as generously supplied with documents.

Mr. Hughes invited the contending forces to take full advantage of the paper evidence.

Benny Friedman Doesn't "Say It With Flowers"

Detroit—(P)—Benny Friedman, University of Michigan quarterback and captain, came from Ann Arbor to tell Benjamin Friedman, a florist, to stop using the famous name of "Ben Friedman" in his advertising. Ben Friedman of Ann Arbor, did not say it with flowers.

There was much strong conversation. Finally Friedman, the quarterback, called the signal for Kennard Barnard, a police officer attached to the Better Business bureau. Barnard agreed with the football player that the florist's advertising fell into the category of misleading advertising. He took Friedman, the florist, to the prosecutor's office where Friedman of

Lines Form in Fight to Oust Vare, Smith

Norris Starts Personal Inquiry; Reed, Pennsylvania, Backs Vare

Washington, D. C.—(P)—Senatorial lines were forming Tuesday for a potential contest over the seating in the seventeenth congress of Senator-elect William S. Vare, Republican, Pennsylvania, whose primary election expenditures have been investigated by the senate campaign fund committee.

A personal inquiry into the Pennsylvania situation is under way by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, who campaigned prior to the election on behalf of William B. Wilson, the Democratic candidate.

REED SUPPORTS COLLEAGUE
Meanwhile Senator Blaine, Democrat, South Carolina, announced that he would vote to seat both Senator-elect Vare and Smith, Republican, Illinois, unless it could be shown that their election had been effected by fraud or corruption, and Senator Davenport, Republican, Pennsylvania, reiterated his intention to vote to seat his colleague on the ground that Republican expenditures in the key state had been legal, honest and necessary.

In Philadelphia the entire election board of one division and the Democratic inspector of another were ordered to give effect to the court's recent decision in the boundary dispute between the two states. Instead, Michigan suggested a line from the mouth of the Montreal river, on Lake Superior, down the Brule and Menominee rivers and then through Green Bay to Lake Michigan.

Michigan's principal changes, Michigan would have made by the line proposed by Wisconsin are in Green Bay and in the question of islands in the Brule and Menominee rivers. It insisted that in Green Bay, the line should run directly out from the mouth of the Menominee in an easterly direction to the most used ship channel in the bay, and follow the channel into Lake Michigan. Michigan would have the islands distributed so that those in the Brule and Menominee rivers, down to and including the lower Quennesset falls, would be placed in Michigan and those below the falls would be placed in Wisconsin, provided that none of the islands now occupied or taxed as a part of Michigan, should pass to Wisconsin.

Michigan insisted that the lower falls should be the dividing line in the distribution of the islands instead of the upper or big Quennesset falls, as proposed by Wisconsin.

Tuesday Appleton was covered with a blanket of snow ranging from about an inch and a half to three inches. The snowfall started early Monday evening and was accompanied by a drop in temperature which sent the mercury to 20 degrees above zero Tuesday morning. Tuesday noon the mercury had climbed to 27 degrees.

A freight derailment at Snells, near Oshkosh, caused trains from the south to be about two hours late Tuesday morning, but railroad officials stated that the derailment was not caused by the storm. The storm itself did not delay railroad traffic around Appleton, the officials said.

All Wisconsin was covered by the snowstorm which was said to center over the lower lake region. The southwest portion received the heaviest snow.

The forecast is generally fair weather Tuesday night and Wednesday, colder Tuesday night with possible drop in temperature to 20 degrees by Wednesday morning.

Madison—(P)—Absolute and perfect obedience is seldom expected and never obtained from a child, Judge Franz Eschweiler ruled Tuesday, in a supreme court opinion dealing with the possession of a motorcycle by a minor.

Henry Droppers of Milwaukee, by giving his son Edward, 15, a motorcycle, was not directly to blame for the accident which resulted in serious injury to Wells Hopkins, who was riding with the youth, the court held but was liable through the act. Damages amounting to $10,000 were awarded to the plaintiff. Droppers warned his son not to drive the motorcycle unaccompanied by an adult. Judge Eschweiler said the father had taken all the precautions possible and was guilty of no negligence.

UPPER COURT ASKED TO SET STATE BOUNDS

Michigan Asks Supreme Court to Ignore Wisconsin
Plan for Line

Washington, D. C.—(P)—Michigan asked the supreme court Tuesday to ignore a line proposed by Wisconsin to give effect to the court's recent decision in the boundary dispute between the two states. Instead, Michigan suggested a line from the mouth of the Montreal river, on Lake Superior, down the Brule and Menominee rivers and then through Green Bay to Lake Michigan.

Michigan's principal changes, Michigan would have made by the line proposed by Wisconsin are in Green Bay and in the question of islands in the Brule and Menominee rivers. Only One of Thirteen Who Escaped Penitentiary Remains at Liberty

Columbus, O.—(P)—Only one of thirteen convicts, who made a break for liberty at the Ohio penitentiary Monday, remained at large Tuesday. An all-night search failed to reveal the hiding place of the lone fugitive, Oliver Glasper, sentenced to a 29-year term for criminal assault.

DISTRICT PROHIBITION DIRECTOR DIES TUESDAY

ARMISTICE DAY IS FOR REJOICING, NOT SORROW, LIONS TOLD

Plummer Urges Country Always to Be Prepared if Trouble Comes

"Armistice day is not a day for sadness and long faces but is meant as a day for rejoicing and celebration because it marks the ending of a great war," H. L. Plummer, former state commander of the American Legion and national executive committee member from Wisconsin, said in an address at the weekly meeting of the Lions club at Conway hotel, Monday noon.

"Except for a period of one minute at 11 o'clock when we ask all the people in the United States to maintain silence and to think of the boys who have come on this day should be marked by happiness and rejoicing," Mr. Plummer declared.

Armistice day is important in American history, according to Mr. Plummer, and citizens should spend a part of the day thinking of the principles of the American people and the government which are built on the May flower compact and the Declaration of Independence.

LOOK FOR SUNSHINE
Mr. Plummer said the boys "over there" nearly always were looking on humorous side of life, even in time of the gravest danger, except when they thought of home. He told of several humorous incidents that occurred in the trenches.

No one believes in pacifism more than the war veterans, Mr. Plummer declared, but they believe in practical and honest methods of bringing about world peace. The methods used by the dreaming pacifists are not enough of future wars in the minds of the great mass of the American people but nevertheless there was no time when the need of a preparatory defense is so apparent as at present, Mr. Plummer stated.

"Suppose some country suddenly decide to occupy the Philippine island," what would you suggest as procedure against such a condition?" Mr. Plummer said that the brains of wars always are engaged in making more effective weapons for warfare. The old saying of Bunker Hill, "Don't shoot until you see the whites of their eyes" would be inappropriate in this age because war is conducted over much longer distances. In the Revolutionary war the trenches were only 100 yards apart, he said, in the Civil war they were 500 yards apart, in the Spanish-American war they were 1,000 yards apart and in the World war they were anywhere from a few feet to 30 miles apart.

Y'S MEN LEARN HOW TO BUILD CAREERS

Rosebush Cites Essentials to Success in Address to Dinner Club

Building a Successful Career and Business was the subject of a talk by Judson G. Rosebush, president of the Northern Paper Co. and vice president of the Y. M. C. A., at a meeting of the Y's Men club Monday evening at the local association. Mr. Rosebush told of the value of compound interest in building an estate and stressed the characteristics of a successful business man.

Three qualities, meditation, initiative and character, are necessary, the speaker said. He stressed that too many men do "40 cent labor where they should be doing $5 thinking." Long hours and hard work are not the essentials of success, but the ability to think out the solution of a problem and spend less time in physical work are the biggest help to the business men.

Initiative is the ability to start a thing and then carry it through to a finish, Mr. Rosebush said. Any business man can start a plan, but it takes initiative to complete it. The best type of business is not where the executive does all the thinking and his men carry out his plans faithfully, but where the men all think for themselves and are constantly asking the executive for help in carrying out ideas which they believe will aid the firm.

Plans for a club newspaper were made after Mr. Rosebush's talk and plans for an initiation of three new members on Monday evening, Nov. 15, were started. Seven men were guests of the club at the meeting.

EISCH LIQUOR CASE IS POSTPONED ANOTHER WEEK

Penning the decision of federal prohibition enforcement officials as to whether they desire to become involved in the prosecution, a case against Eisch, charged with violation of the prohibition laws, was postponed for another week when called before Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Monday afternoon.

Mr. Eisch was arrested by city police who allege that a small amount of evidence was found during the raid.

The place where the defendant was operating his alleged establishment for the dispensing of "soft" drinks was under government padlock, the records show, and it was on this angle of the case that government intervention was expected.

500 MOTOR BUSES ARE OPERATING ON BADGER HIGHWAYS

Operators Hold Convention in Fond du Lac to Discuss Their Problems

Madison (P)—Nearly 500 motor coaches are being operated in Wisconsin by about 57 companies, M. H. Frank, Fond du Lac, president of the Wisconsin Motor Coach association told members of the organization at their first annual convention here Tuesday.

Among the things advocated by Mr. Frank was use of coupon mileage books good for transportation on any motor coach line connected with the association, group insurance for member companies; uniform selection of drivers; accident and road failure prevention.

"The motor coach industry," he said, "is bound to grow rapidly because transportation by motor coach has been accepted by most steam railroads and electric railways as a desirable ally and by the public as a needed extension of transportation service and a convenient substitute for private cars."

"This convention represents an important step in the motor coach industry because it is the first time that all operators have come together to discuss their problems and to work out solutions."

"Our principal objective should be to provide transportation facilities to every section of the state by coordinating motor bus service with existing railroad and electric railway lines and by extending our service to communities not now receiving adequate transportation service."

"Among the objectives of our association are:
"a.—Establishment of a permanent state clearing house for information and ideas of benefit to motor bus operators.
"b.—To offer operators an agency for comparison of costs and operating methods.
"c.—Establishment of uniform operating methods.
"d.—Assist electric officials in furthering highway building programs, maintenance of roads and protection of existing highways.
"e.—Promote educational work through publicity and newspaper advertising.
"f.—Cooperate with officials in the enactment and enforcement of laws relating to the operation of motor buses.
"g.—Promote friendly relations between operators, between operators and manufacturers, other state associations and to assist in the elimination of unfair business methods."

MINISTERS ARRANGE DISCUSSION SCHEDULE

SENATE TO FIGHT FOR ITS RIGHT TO FIRE OFFICIALS

President Can't Hire but Can Fire Men, Supreme Court Rules

Washington—The president can't hire a man to work for the government without the Senate's consent, but he can fire to suit himself.

This decision by the supreme court promises to be the subject of a bitter row in the upper house of Congress this winter than any other thing.

It wasn't a unanimous decision. Justices Taft, Van Devanter, Sutherland, Butler, Sanford and Stone rendered it. Justices Holmes, McReynolds and Brandeis disagreed. The dissenters declared that the majority verdict struck at the very foundation of America's government.

That gives an idea of the issues importance. The case arose from President Wilson's dismissal of Frank S. Myers as postmaster at Portland, Ore.

Myers was appointed in 1917 for the usual four-year term. A presidential appointment isn't sufficient to install a federal official on the job. It must be confirmed by the Senate. The Senate did confirm Myers.

After Myers had served nearly three years the president decided he was unsatisfactory and removed him. Myers contended that he couldn't be fired any more than he could be hired, without the consent of the Senate.

So Myers sued for $5,531, the balance of his four years' salary. He's dead now but his heirs kept his claim alive.

The supreme court now ratifies his removal, setting a precedent.

This means giving to the president a very important power which the Senate always claimed for itself. The Senate, which never willingly surrenders authority, can be depended on to raise a terrible howl as soon as Congress meets.

Senator King of Utah announces that he'll start proceedings, the minute the session opens, to amend the constitution to meet the situation. That he'll have smooth sailing, so far as the Senate is concerned, is a foregone conclusion. No senator, regardless of his politics, wants to see the body of which he's a member shorn of power. The House of Representatives, more interested in its own rights than in the Senate's, may not be wrought up so much.

The firing power will be convenient for the president from his own standpoint. How much President Coolidge has desired it has been indicated recently by his adoption, in a number of instances of a roundabout method of insuring himself facilities for getting rid of his appointees who failed to suit him.

His system was to have the candidate for a job hand in his resignation before getting his appointment. If he didn't walk chalk the president simply would fish out his resignation and accept it.

After a few mysterious resignations the explanation leaked out, and there was a big row in the Senate, where the president was accused of violating the constitution.

Now, however, under the supreme court's latest interpretation, the chief executive can lop off heads right out in public without asking anybody's permission.

John Herb of Westminster, Canada, returned to his home after spending two weeks with friends and relatives here.

BUTCHERS MAKE GOOD ON THREAT TO NAB RAFFLERS

Two Go into Court for Disposing of Thanksgiving Fowl by Gambling Method

Two men fell when the opening salvo of legal shots was fired by the Appleton Butchers' Association against their arch enemy, the poultry rafflers, and as a result of the opening skirmish William Melitz, Twelve Corner, and Charles Kemps, proprietor of the Blue Goose Inn on the Freedom road, were to face the tribunal on economic relations as personified in Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court sometime Tuesday.

True to a recent promise, District Attorney John A. Lonsdorf, acting on knowledge and belief supplied by undercover workers of the intelligence department of the cooperating meat retailers, issued warrants charging the men with violation of the widely advertised statutes and legislation regarding alleged gambling within the boundaries of the sovereign state of Wisconsin.

Evidence, according to the report filed with the district attorney, was gathered Saturday night, when, it is alleged, several turkeys were disposed of through a gambling device by the defendants at their respective places of business.

Meat dealers several days ago issued an ultimatum to wildcat speculators in turkey flesh that war had been declared against the illegitimate forms of placing the fattened fowl on the Thanksgiving festive board.

GROUP MEETINGS ARE ARRANGED FOR COUNTY TEACHERS

Seven Conclaves Are Planned by Superintendents This Winter

County Superintendent A. G. Meating and Rural Supervisors Nellie McDermott and Arthur L. Collar were in conference Monday arranging a tentative schedule for holding group meetings of county teachers.

These gatherings, it was pointed out, harmonize with a policy advocated by the state department of education.

According to present intentions seven such conclaves will be arranged with strategic points in the county selected so that the greatest number of teachers can assemble at a given spot with the least possible loss of traveling time.

MUSIC SUPERVISOR INVITED TO TEXAS

Dr. Earl L. Baker, supervisor of music in the public schools, has been asked to speak at the national convention of Superintendents of schools at Dallas, Tex., in February. The invitation followed Dr. Baker's address on Boys Chorus Work in the Junior High Schools given at the music section of the convention of the Wisconsin Teachers association in Milwaukee Friday.

Other speakers at the Milwaukee meeting in the music section were T. P. Giddings, supervisor of music in the public schools in Minneapolis, Minn., and said by Dr. Baker to be the greatest in America in vocal school music teaching, and Joseph Maddy, supervisor of the Ann Arbor, Mich., schools, and the greatest in this country for instrumental work in the schools, the Appleton director said.

Both men will attend the music clinic in Appleton in March.

EXAMINE 5 AT FREE MONTHLY CHEST CLINIC

Only five persons were examined at the free monthly chest clinic at the Woman's club Saturday afternoon conducted by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. Dr. C. D. Boyd of Kaukauna, physician of Riverview sanitarium was in charge. The attendance was small because so many people had been turned away at previous examinations because of the large crowd, it was believed.

Preserve Old Newspaper Printed On Wallpaper

Madison—(AP)—Among the mementoes on exhibit before visitors to Wisconsin statehouse, is a newspaper printed on the white side of wallpaper and more than three score years old. The sixty-three year old piece of paper has on its wall side the following: Clicksburg Daily Citizen, Thursday, July 2, 1863.

J. M. Swords, the editor of the paper evidently was hard pressed for paper because the city of Vicksburg was completely surrounded by General Grant and his men. This is shown by the following words in one of the columns:

"On Dit—That the great Ulysses, the Yankee Generalissimo, surnamed Grant, has exposed his intention of dining in Vicksburg on Saturday next and celebrating the 4th of July by a grand dinner and so forth. When asked if he would invite General Johnston to join he said, 'No, for fear there will be a row at the table.' Ulysses must get into the city before he dines in it. The way to cook a rabbit is 'first to catch the rabbit.'"

That General Grant ate dinner in Vicksburg on July 4th, 1863 is proven by the following words that are printed in the last column of the sheet. "Two days bring about great changes. The banner of the Union floats over Vicksburg. General Grant has 'caught the rabbit' he has dined in Vicksburg, and he did bring his dinner with him. The 'Citizen' lives to see it. For the last time it appears on 'wall-paper.' No more will it eulogize the luxury of mule meat and fricasseed kittens—large Southern warriors to such diet never more. This is the last wall-paper edition, and is excepting this note, from the types as we found them. It will be valuable hereafter as a curiosity. Compliments of J. W. Fackler, Co. B, 22nd Iowa Infantry."

Another passage in the "Citizen" reads:

"A rumor has reached us that parties in our city have been, and are now, selling flour at five dollars per pound, molasses at ten dollars per gallon, and corn at ten dollars per bushel. We have not as yet proved the fact upon the parties accused, but this allusion to the subject may induce some of our citizens to ascertain whether such prices have been paid, and to whom; and if so let a brand not only be placed upon the brow, but let it be scarred into their very brain, that humanity may scorn and shun them as they would the portals of hell itself."

IF BACK HURTS
FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The functions of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts are inexpensive; cannot injure; make a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Menasha—Anton Maciejewski of Menasha, who is accused of possession of moonshine liquor and a large still, appeared in municipal court at Oshkosh Monday represented by his attorneys, Keller & Keller of Appleton, and made motion that the information be quashed and the charges dismissed. BUSINESS IN CONSERVATION
The Wisconsin division of the Izaak Walton league, together with the Wisconsin Game Protective association, Land o' Lakes association, Northern Resort Owners' association, and other allied associations interested in conservation, announces that it will ask the coming legislature to abolish the present conservation commission, substitute a new unpaid commission of six members, concentrate authority in this commission and through it attempt to reforest Wisconsin, stop forest fires, establish wild life refuges and parks and halt the destruction of natural resources and scenery. The organizations which are supporting this move comprise, it is said, 40,000 citizens of the state.

The reorganized, non-salaried commission would employ a conservation director, having special training and skill in this work, and he would be the administrative head of the department. The commission would be given power to make such rules and regulations and establish such services as it might deem necessary to carry out the provisions and purposes of the act. It would have the power to establish open or closed seasons on any species of game or fish; to establish and maintain game and fish refuges; state forests for the purpose of growing timber and demonstrating forestry methods; state parks for the preserving of scenic or historic values; public shooting, trapping and fish grounds; fish hatcheries and game farms; forest nurseries and experimental stations; to issue and enforce rules for the prevention of forest fires and to establish and maintain an adequate forest fire fighting system.

The proposal offered is the first comprehensive plan yet laid before the people of Wisconsin for genuine conservation. As the conservation department is at present constituted and as it has heretofore existed, it is a political office pure and simple. The legislature is not a competent body to deal with conservation specifically, nor is the administrative system it has set up competent to promote and conserve the wild life and natural resources of the state. What is needed is broad and elastic authority to deal with conservation problems as they constantly arise and fluctuate.

The ideas advanced by the Izaak Walton league and allied organizations would take the whole scheme of conservation out of politics, and that is its chief recommendation. The legislature is influenced by political considerations in attempting to enact specific statutes, and they are wholly inadequate to the requirements which Wisconsin so sorely needs of safeguarding its fish and game supplies, its forests and their replenishment, its national playgrounds and its scenic beauty. This has been obvious for a long time, but we have made no progress toward remedying the conditions, nor are we likely to so long as the present political system obtains.

The time has come when conservation must be placed in the hands of skilled and ethical authority, whose powers are sufficiently wide to make real and constructive conservation possible. The automobile and the large and growing influx of tourists annually present most difficult problems, and they constitute a challenge to the resourcefulness and intelligence of our government in handling them. Our remaining wild life and the remaining endowments of nature that have done so much for Wisconsin and that means so much to it in the future are gravely threatened. If we wish to save them we must act now, and the Walton plan would seem to present the opportunity and the means.

ANOTHER DAUGHERTY TRIAL
United States Attorney Buckner has rightly decided to proceed immediately to obtain a new trial of Harry Daugherty, former attorney-general, and Thomas W. Miller, charged with conspiracy in the sale of German property. The first trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury, to the astonishment of those who had followed the presentation of evidence. There is a general feeling that both Daugherty and Miller are guilty, but unless they can be convicted legally they will remain merely under the podium of the moral judgment of the public and will escape the penalties of the law.

The scandals through which Daugherty has been dragged, commencing with the bribery of Fall by the oil interests, has to do with the utmost depravity in American political life. Up to this time none of the principals or accessories in this chapter of corrupt government has been convicted. The present charges against Mr. Daugherty represent in effect a continuation of that conduct which all but discredited the administrative side of Mr. Harding's brief term as president.

The conspiracy charges of the government in the present case were well sustained. On top of that is Mr. Daugherty's failure to go on the stand in his own defense, and the further incriminating act of destroying pertinent bank records. The government will have the advantage in a re-trial of knowing in advance defense tactics. The case originally was presented under the greatest difficulties and heavy obstacles. The government's work should now be simplified. The public wants justice done in this case. It wants the whole malodorous mess exposed. The respect for government and the courts that would follow conviction, if there is guilt, would be most wholesome.

MAYBE HIS NAME'S AGAMEMNON!

No longer will "George," the dusky Pullman porter, answer to that well-known cognomen. The Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters will see to that.

The brotherhood asks travelers to call porters by their real names. The brotherhood tells the railroad companies that porters' names must be hung in their respective cars.

Travelers will commit grave Pullmanic errors at first. So accustomed have we become to calling each and sundry porters "George," that we must be forgiven while we practice the new custom of "Rastusing," "Franking," or "Charleying" them.

But the brotherhood is right in recognizing the worth of personal dignity to any employee.

No minister, no plumber, no barber, no doctor, would have endured silently throughout the years a custom of wholesale name labeling on his profession.

A race of porters known not collectively as "George," but known individually as personalities, will make beds softer, shine shoes brighter and bring the ladder with more speed and agility.

THE MAN WITHOUT A BATHTUB

A man with a rare and interesting title died in New York City a day or so ago. He was not The Homeliest Man in the World, nor The Richest Man in the World, nor yet The Man With the Reddest Hair in the World.

No, Maria Jose Mora died with the distinctive title of The Man Who Had No Bath for Twenty Years.

Mora became convinced some 20 years ago that bathing "washed off the spark of life." So he took no chances with his "spark," and permitted no water to touch his epidermis.

We laugh at poor Mora, and yet— It is not half a century since bathing was forbidden by law in some vicinities.

THE PROBLEM
Philosophers will search the great unknown Seeking a thread of truth to them denied. While life is rich with charms on every side. With God, I think, they wish to stand alone. To snatch and claim His secrets for their own. But here is beauty, stretching far and wide. Here on the stream of life all mortals ride. Where every port of peace is plainly shown.

We come to earth to spend a few brief years. We must remain until our task is complete. Then which among us happiest appears. The good man or the liar and the cheat? This is our problem. Not what Heaven may give. But how to find contentment while we live.

WHY SO MUCH UNBURNED WASTE?

For years now the controversy about alleged "colds" has been raging and I find my own hands badly sore and itchy. Never since the quarrel began have I seen so much direct or indirect evidence of a physical or health authority venturing to commit himself or his cause to the extent of defining what he means by "the common cold," so that the fight goes merely on, neither side knowing precisely what the other is talking about. That is the secret of a good many controversies, isn't it? If the doctors or sanitarians who sincerely believe there is such an entity as a "cold" or that ordinary exposure to cold or wet directly or indirectly causes any illness, why can't they get together and formulate some sort of a definition for the disease or illness they may have in mind? If they will do that I'll go and wash my hands.

Queer how exasperating the unqualified statement of the truth is to lay or professional people who have long cherished romantic vagaries. Seldom have I received so much indignation and received such a shower of vehement scoldings as I did when I boldly asserted that "auto-intoxication" from the absorption of "retained waste matter" from the intestine into the blood is a preposterous fancy. Another incautious statement of scientific fact which brought a furious response was the assertion that nothing is absorbed through the unbroken skin. This stimulated a good deal of anonymity, but also brought some curious communications from the clods of doctors and dentists that take seriously the intimation medical or dental magazines which are peddled gratuitously by aggressive commercial concerns as house organs.

One doctor, availing himself of anonymity, told a publisher friend that if Dr. Brady doubted that anything can be absorbed through the skin he should try rubbing some belladonna on his back and see how promptly he would get dizzy and sick. I challenge that doctor to meet me before a committee of physicians and put my skin to the test. But he will not meet me. They never do have the courage to back up their house organ-inspired notions.

The only waste matter which need concern a sensible person is the unburned or incompletely oxidized waste matter which may be retained in the blood or the other body tissues; for instance uric acid.

How to eliminate or dispose of such incompletely burned waste is a pretty serious problem for the physician to deal with, according to the conditions in the individual case. But the prevention of the accumulation of such unoxidized waste or half burned fuel in the blood or other tissues (mind I do not say in the "system" because we need not worry about any waste matter in the intestine) is a matter of health or hygiene.

I have hinted in preceding discussions of the uric acid problem that the logical remedy is more oxygen, and I have explained that the best way to enjoy the benefit of that remedy is the health habit of taking six miles of oxygen on the hoof every day. This is just an arbitrary dose, an average dose. Some persons may require only three miles; others nine or 10 miles. Any other form of outdoor exercise of indoor calisthenics may be substituted for walking, but walking is the best of all exercises for health. Walk six miles every day and you won't have any troublesome unburned waste to dispose of.

There are other means of increasing oxidation in the body. We'll muster up courage and tell about them in an early issue.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

No Control
I have two children, aged 11 and 9 years, who have no control of their kidneys at night. . . . (T. H.)

Answer—I think you mean to say the children wet the bed. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for the management of your children's trouble. No one has any control over the kidneys at any time. Nor is bed wetting "real kidney trouble" or any indication of anything the matter with the kidneys. Do not send a clipping, and do not fail to mention that they are your children. I have no advice to send for "a child," but I am glad to send advice for "my son" or "our little girl."

Even Bimbos Have It
I am going to wean my baby, now 14 months old. Shall I put him on plain boiled cow's milk or lactated milk? He has taken milk of magnesia or lime water practically all of his life for too much acid in his stomach. (Mrs. S. W. H.)

Answer—Do you suppose the baby has been reading the testimonials or swapping symptoms with the neighbors? If there is too much acid in the baby's stomach it would scarcely seem wise to feed him lactated milk. Pure milk from an unboiled cow would be the best. Unless there is some abnormal condition for which the physician prescribes lactated milk, better omit them. A baby 14 months old should take a straight milk, and also several other foods. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for outline of the diet for a baby a year old.

CRUSADING AGAINST ILLITERACY.

Washington, D. C. Americans who are given to boasting that their country is the best, biggest, richest, and every other nice superlative in world will dwell to ponder occasionally the fact that there is an appalling amount of ignorance in the United States, and that in the matter of illiteracy this nation ranks tenth among the civilized nation of the world. That is something to be ashamed of rather to brag about, and a number of public-spirited citizens feel the disgrace so keenly that they have organized a National Illiteracy Crusade.

An illiterate is a person ten years of age or older who cannot not read or write his own name in any language, and when the last census was taken there were 5,000,000 such in this country, ranging from 3149 in Wyoming to 425,022 in New York. Presumably, with the increase in population, there are more of them at the present time although the percentage of illiteracy may show a slight decrease.

William Allen White, of Kansas, heads the National Illiteracy Crusade which has started a nation-wide drive with the slogan, "Wipe out illiteracy by 1930." Jane Addams and Glenn Frank are vice-presidents, and the board of directors includes a large number of men and women prominent in politics, public welfare work, literature, and art. Mrs. Clara Wilson Stewart, of Kentucky, is the director in charge of the national headquarters, which have been established in the American Red Cross Building in Washington.

The movement, which reaches into every State, is being carried forward by volunteer workers, many of whom not only give their time and efforts but pay their own expenses. However, textbooks and other supplies for the schools must be provided and there are other expenses to be met hence a certain amount of funds must be raised. This is now being undertaken, although no public appeal is being made and the campaign does not resemble the drives that are made periodically to get subscriptions or cash for public welfare purposes.

STARTED IN MOONLIGHT SCHOOLS
The war on illiteracy, while it has but recently grown to such proporofficial way, and others only through the work of interested citizens. Some of the States have adopted interesting campaign slogans, such as "Let South Carolina Secede From Illiteracy" and "Delaware, First to Sign the Constitution, and First to Wipe Out Illiteracy," and it is said that four States are already very close to the goal of no illiteracy. They are Vermont, Delaware, North Dakota, and Oklahoma.

HOW THE WORK IS CARRIED ON
The methods used in local and state illiteracy campaigns are very much the same throughout the country. A community is canvassed thoroughly, illiterates are searched out and personally invited to the school, volunteer teachers are pledged, and then a strong effort is made to create a public or community sentiment such that no one will hesitate to come to the school because he thinks an admission of illiteracy is humiliating or disgraceful. The big idea that every effort is made to put over is that it's disgrace to be illiterate if you've never had a chance at schooling, but it is disgrace to continue to be an illiterate when an opportunity has been presented you to overcome what handicap.

Striking success has attended the schools, due to the eagerness and determined purpose of the pupils to make the most of their opportunity, and because the teachers can concentrate on instruction not having to pay any attention to questions of discipline or application. Also the textbooks are of a character to hold the interest of adults — they are not taught to read out of a "I-see-the-cat" primer, but in one that tells them something bearing on their daily activities — and to learn to write they are not asked to make frehand spirals for hours at a time and then set to copying a line written in teacher's perfect Spencerian hand. They are furnished a pad, the first pages of which are heavy blotting paper in which the letters of the alphabet have been heavily indented, and told to trace the letters over and over until they are familiar with them. By this system many men and women have learned to write their names in the course of half an hour thus ending for all time the humiliation of having to make their marks when signing any kind of document. They learn to read and write in six weeks.

The national campaign against illiteracy is divided into three divisions. One confined to the instruction of rural illiterates, another to

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York. — I don't pretend to understand the geographic psychology of styles.

Now New York shops love to amount that such-and-such a hat comes from Paris; such-and-such a garment comes from London.

Get 20 miles out of New York, one way or another, and the stores boast that such-and-such is in the latest New York manner.

On a recent trip to Montreal I walked through the French business section, thinking that at last I could probably pick up a hat or so, minus duty, which I might feel certain had come direct from Paris or way points.

Going up to a window I was bowled over by a great display of wide-brimmed hats from the great open spaces of Montana, while a huge window card advertised: "Chapeau au Tom Mix."

There with I quit!

Many months will pass before the tales concerning Queen Marie die on Broadway.

The latest links a portion of her entertainment with the financial success of that historic veteran, "Abie's Irish Rose." Anne Nichols, who wrote it, and has relied on her income was able to supply the queenly bed upon which Marie slept. Also a $2500 tablecloth came out of Abie's profits.

One of the large New York hotels now slips a liquor price list under the doors of its guests each morning. It is printed daily and quotes the day's prices in Scotch, gin, champagne, eye and liquor. The list is guaranteed and the card reads, "Goods guaranteed or money refunded. Confidential—Caterer."

Broadway at last is learning to recognize the sound of the curfew.

And there is much wailing and gnashing of teeth. Broadway is not highway easily harassed to restraint.

During the winter months, so says the new city edict, the naughty night clubs and cabarets must close at 3 o'clock. The prophets continue to insist that it will be a good trick if they do it.

Already various methods of evasion are planned. New clubs blossom out in the guise of private clubs with memberships. "Members must hand cards at the door, but once the places begin operation, these cards will doubtless be as easy to obtain as Scotch highballs. This, of course, will add to the expense of the average visitor since an entrance card will have considerable sale value.

Curfew or no curfew Broadway will find a way to dance 'til dawn if it has to dance in the street.

The Question Box

Q. The following question has recently been the subject of an argument: Can one say "In my estimation, that is correct," or "To my estimation?"

A. The English idiom requires that one say "In my estimation."

Q. What year did Dizzy Vance, pitcher for the Brooklyn Nationals, have his greatest number of strikeouts? A. S.

A. Vance had his greatest number of strikeouts in the year 1924 when his record was 262. In 1925 he had 221 strikeouts.

Q. What is the name of the chemical which when held in contact with artificial gas will cause the gas to light? A. B. H.

A. It is spongy platinum.

Q. What percentage of automobiles in the United States are bought on the installment plan? L. C. T.

A. Seventy-five per cent of automobiles are purchased on the installment plan.

Indians, and the third to prison inmates.

That illiteracy in the United States can be absolutely wiped out by 1930 is admitted to be doubtful, but the leaders of the movement say it is not impossible of accomplishment, and that any rate sufficient progress can be made to insure that the next Federal census will tell a far different story.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE.

Jaunty Beauty of Field and Forest
BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n.

It is believed that all pheasants came originally from southern Asia, where the great variety of climate and environment have developed an astonishing variety of beautiful and interesting species.

Some are birds of the hot moist forests some prefer open woods of the higher lands and a few inhabit the almost treeless slopes and canyons of the lofty Himalayas, where they may descend to the shelter of the forest when danger threatens. Most of them have long tails, the central feathers of which present a degree of graceful slenderness which well sets off the bird's jaunty beauty. Others have rounded tails not unlike those of our grouse.

None is dull, and in a majority the variety of color is bewildering. Copper and bronze and gold and silver, in all combinations and degrees of iridescence, help to make the group one of the most notable, since they are rivalled, perhaps only by the famed birds of paradise.

Long ago, when the depleted game coverts of England suggested importation of pheasants, the pheasant was brought from the east. China pheasant it is often called, but usually it is the blend of a number of breeds. The success of Britain's experiment led America, when her incomparable game birds began to show the effect of overshooting, to turn to the pheasant. Great numbers were turned out in a blind endeavor, but in most instances the birds failed to establish themselves.

In a few sections, however, notably in the more humid parts of our northwest, and in southern British Columbia, the pheasant seems to have a reason found suited to its needs.

GET VIEWS OF BOY AND GIRL ON FARM

Department of Agriculture Wants Data on Attitude of Youth in Rural Areas

Washington, D. C. — What to do about the farm boys and girls in view of the present economic state of agriculture is the subject of a study of the Department of Agriculture officials studying rural life problems. A nation-wide inquiry is being made to learn the views of boys and girls on farm life, the results of which are to be discussed at a Farm Youth conference at Washington, D. C., Nov. 10 to 14, held by the Country Life association.

The questionnaire includes inquiries on the school status of farm boys and girls, the reasons why they like or dislike farm life, what literature they read, home conveniences, and social activities. Secretary W. M. Jardine will address the conference on Nov. 11. Other department speakers will include Dr. C. B. Smith, chief of the office of cooperative extension work; Miss Grace Frysinger, extension home economist, central states; and Dr. C. J. Galpin, in charge of rural life studies.

PRODUCE MARKET SHOWS GOOD TONE

Both Cheese and Butter Situation Satisfactory, Weekly Review Shows

Madison—(P)—Although production of cheese is falling under that of a year ago, cheese prices are somewhat higher than a year ago at this time, the Wisconsin department of markets said in its weekly review here Saturday.

Trading on the markets was generally quiet during the week, the review said, improving towards the latter part of the week. Buyers generally did not show any disposition to anticipate needs. The situation, however, is steady mainly as a result of light receipts. Arrivals have been showing some decreases during the last few weeks and receipts are running considerably lighter than last year.

Although trading on the butter markets was generally quiet during the past week the situation is steady and inspires confidence. Supplies were not burdensome; fancy butter supplies were very light. At some markets there were fractional advances on top scores. Generally, however, the supplies were ample to meet the demand. Centralized car market trading was slow. Butter prices are two cents lower than last year at this time.

Cattle exported from Canada in the first months of the present year amounted to 93,742 head, as compared with 94,950 head in the same period of 1925.

THREATEN U. S. TOBACCO

BALING THE LEAVES FOR MATURING AT THE REDFIELDS TOBACCO FARM, ENGLAND.

BY MILTON BRONNER
London—If a stubborn Englishman named J. Brandon has his way, Kentucky, Virginia, Ohio, North Carolina and Connecticut will have to look to their laurels and their exports.

Brandon proposes to produce upon British soil a considerable portion of the tobacco the British use in their pipes and cigarettes.

His stubbornness consists in his refusal to be beaten by the triumvirate of English soil, English rain and English cold.

He has won, so far as his own farm of Redfields at Cookham in Berkshire is concerned. He has progressed to the point where, with clock-like regularity every year, he has a considerable crop of tobacco, which is properly prepared and shipped to the London and Bristol markets.

He contends that what he has been able to do others can do. If farmers begin turning their lands into tobacco fields, England can considerably cut down the money she sends to America. For the English are among the greatest smokers in the world.

At Redfields, towards the end of August, the tobacco harvest is in full swing.

The three-foot, golden-yellow leaves, only a certain number of which have been allowed to grow on each plant, are carefully gathered and hung to dry in a curing shed. After this comes the steaming, which makes the leaves soft and pliable.

They are then banded, stacked and left to ferment. Finally they are compressed into hogsheads and left to mature before being sent to the tobacco factories.

It is claimed the Redfields product compares favorably with American-grown tobacco. And the price is high enough to make the crop pay well.

MAY HOLD BULL SALE
Appleton — Walter H. Wickett, route 4, says that between Dec. 10, and Dec. 15, the Holstein Breeders' Association of Outagamie-co may hold a bull sale in Appleton. Questionnaires have been sent out by Edward O. Mueller, secretary of the association, to all breeders, to determine the numbers of surplus bulls available for the proposed sale. W. Chadfield, fieldman of the Wisconsin Agriculturists, states that there is a shortage of Holstein bulls in the state and that a sale at this time would be very attractive to breeders. "As T. B. testing has been completed in Outagamie county," says Mr. Wickett, "it ought to be safe place to buy cattle for breeding purposes."

Appleton—To Clark's Holstein Special sale, recently held in Fond du Lac, six Outagamie-co breeders consigned 14 animals and three breeders purchased outstanding animals at the sale. The consignors were E. G. Carpenter, Hortonville, two animals; Alvin Tiedt, Black Creek, one animal; Fred Melchert, Seymour, one; Louis Muelmans, Kaukauna, one; George R. Schaefer, Appleton, one; E. P. Winkler, Medina, four; and William Munger, Seymour, two. The breeders who made purchases are George R. Schaefer, Fred Melchert and Willis Munger.

Mr. Schaefer bought the bull, Welcows Ollie Creamwell, born in September, 1919, sired by Johanna Sir Ollie who won first prize at the National Dairy show in 1919. The dam is Welcows Ormsby Creamilla with a seven day butter record of 32.66 pounds and 654.90 pounds of milk and a 365 day record of 939.42 pounds of butter and 22,128.63 pounds of milk. The six nearest dams to this bull averaged 31.17 pounds of butter in seven days. The Schaefer bull weighs 2,500 pounds and, though a splendid individual, has never been shown at state fairs.

EUROPEAN FARMERS RAISING STANDARD OF LIVING, CLAIM

Do Not Live in Hovels in Poverty, Expert on U. S. Agriculture Finds

Washington, D. C. —Living standards of some European farmers are better than are found in certain localities in the United States, reports Dr. C. J. Galpin of the Department of Agriculture who has just returned from a study of farm life abroad.

"The common idea that European farmers live in hovels in poverty is no longer accurate," Dr. Galpin says. "Conditions are bad in some cases, as they are in some cases in the United States, but there is a great number of farmers abroad whose living standards are comparable with what we have in this country."

VISITED 13 COUNTRIES
Dr. Galpin's observations were made on the basis of comparison with conditions thirty years ago when he made a similar study of European farm living standards. He visited 13 countries in his survey, and obtained first-hand information of living conditions on all types of farms.

"European farmers," he said, "are becoming consumers of more and better goods. They are demanding greater economic recognition and are calling for reforms through legislation the same as farmers in this country. They are adopting cooperation, and making it secure by special efforts in education of the adult farm population."

MANY NEW HOUSES
"There is a large number of new and better farm houses. The farm people of Europe are determined to have more things and to live more comfortably. Farm women in some countries no longer do the heavier farm work. Public opinion prevails in these countries that agriculture gains in the long run when the farm woman does not have to do a 'woman's day's work and a man's day's work too.'"

The advanced view now held of the economic importance of European farmers, Dr. Galpin said, was manifest at the first international conference on the improvement of rural life, at Brussels last summer. Thirty leading rural men and women from 31 European nations attended the conference, in addition to the American delegates.

PRISON FARM SUCCEEDS
The prison farm on Riker's Island, New York city, is successful in its operation and is able to market a great number of products. The land on which the farm is located is for the most part formed from refuse.

YOUTH WINS HONORS
Alvin C. Mahrenholz, 16-year-old Lawrence county, Illinois, farm boy, made a record in junior agricultural club work which led club officials of the Illinois College of Agriculture to select him as the most outstanding of all the 424 dairy club members in the state.

DOBBERSTEIN COW HIGH FOR MONTH

A grade Holstein owned by John Dobberstein was the high cow for the month of October in the Ellington-Outagamie Cow Testing association. This animal produced 1,693 pounds of milk and 50.8 pounds of butterfat during the past month. Arnold Spiegelberg owns the cow with the second highest average, a grade Guernsey, with a record of 903 pounds of milk and 46.2 pounds of butterfat.

Mr. Spiegelberg also has the high herd, 12 grade Guernseys, which produced an average of 648 pounds of milk and 31.9 pounds of butterfat. The second high herd, 23 grade Guernseys, is owned by E. M. Britrick. This herd averaged 587 pounds of milk and 29.9 pounds of butterfat.

During October 519 cows were tested in the association. Eight animals were sold as unprofitable, and two were sold for dairy purposes. H. Brahmner is the official tester of the association.

BREAKFAST—Grape fruit juice, codfish balls, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—English monkey, curly endive with bacon dressing, Dutch apple cake, milk, tea.

DINNER—Boned and stuffed shoulder of lamb, currant jelly, creamed carrots, prune and pineapple salad, rye bread, pumpkin pudding, milk, coffee.

I am trying to save on potatoes this year without losing any valuable calories or vitamins. The stuffing in the roast furnishes the necessary calories but the carrots take care of the vitamins and mineral salts. When a dish rich in carbohydrates is served as a substitute for potatoes as in this case with the stuffing, the other vegetable included in the menu should be particularly rich in mineral salt and an extra large serving calculated.

PUMPKIN PUDDING

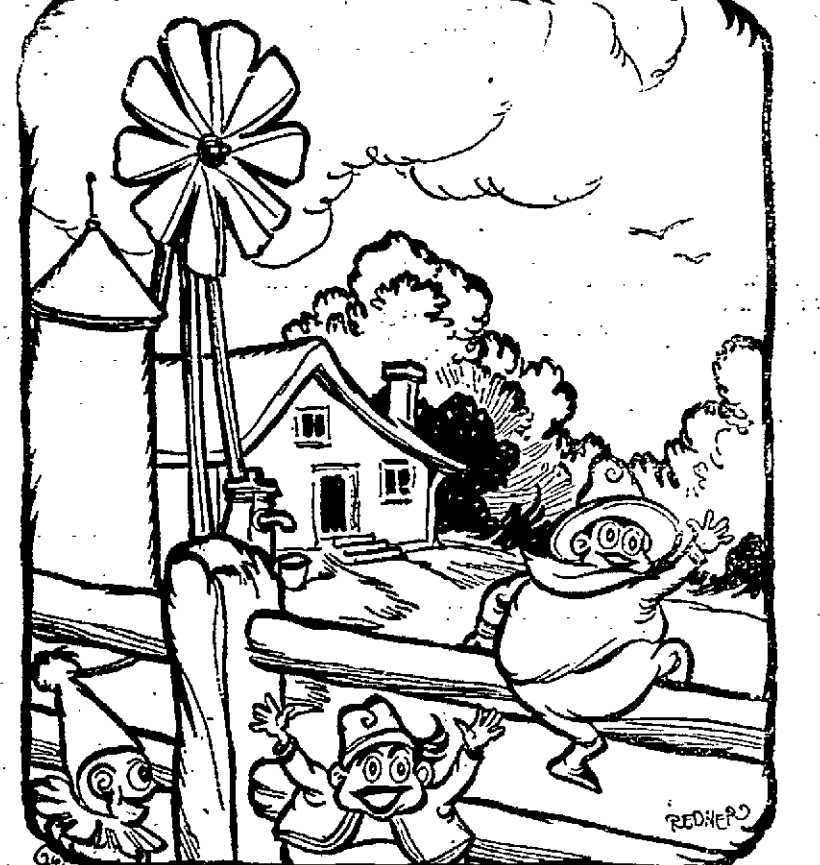

Two cups sifted pumpkin, 2 eggs, 1 1/4 cups granulated sugar, 3 cups milk, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons molasses 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup seeded and chopped nuts, 4 tablespoons chocolate syrup, nut meat of pecans, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 4 more tablespoons granulated sugar.

Beat yolks of eggs until light, beating in sugar, molasses, spices and salt. Add nuts, raisins and pumpkin and stir well. Slowly add milk, stirring to mix thoroughly. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake 50 minutes in a slow oven. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry, beating in sugar and lemon juice. Pile over top of pudding and return to oven for eight minutes to brown and cook the meringue.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

A squeaking sound at first day-break made all the Tinymites awake. They hopped up from the haypile where they'd snoozed real sound all night. Wee Clowny was the first to speak. "For goodness sake, what makes that squeak?" The farmer needs some oil to make what'er it is run right."

They climbed down from the haypile then, and started looking 'round again. "Ah, here's the cause of all the noise," said Scouty, with a sigh. He pointed to a large windmill which, when it turned, could not keep still. They gazed up at the whirling wings that seemed lost in the sky.

Soon Clowny started all the bunch by saying, "I've a dandy hunch! Just follow me," he shouted, as he turned upon his heel. "If the gas to guide the windmill stop, and climb up to the very top, we'll take a ride upon the wings, just like a ferris wheel."

They then discovered that the mill would cease to turn, and hold real still if they would stop the pumpstem to which it was attached. So several held the handle tight, while Copy climbed most out of sight. It's funny how, through little thoughts, such thrilling things are hatched.

Soon several others joined the climb and reached the mill winch just in time. It scared them when they looked down at the ground so far below. One Tiny crawled out on each wing. Then those below heard Copy sing, "All right, we're hanging on real tight. Now, let the windmill go."

And then whirling ride began. Just think how thrilling, if you can. The funny little Tinymites went sailing fast through space. They shivered with each cold breeze puff and swoosh they said they'd had enough. So those down on the ground below climbed up and took their place.

WHAT'S THE RUSH BROTHER?

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Do you remember the half-grown youth who came around at night with a ladder, leaned it up against the iron lamp-post in front of your house at dusk, mounted it, turned back the globe, struck a match and lit the gas to guide the nocturnal pedestrian on his way?

Do you remember how you stood on the corner and froze and looked at your watch anxiously as you had only an hour to catch your train, while the horse-car (or mule-car) parked around the corner into your line of vision to carry you bumpily and to the music of bells to your destination two miles away?

Do you remember when there were practically no central heating systems of air, water, or steam in the house, and fire in each room meant stoking with coal or wood, and ashes to be carried out all over the house every morning?

Do you seem to hear the resonant boom of the first tin bath-tub as you descended into it, much as you would lower your weight nowadays into an airplane, and with the same thrill?

You don't perchance recollect sweep day, with ten square miles of six-wire brussels carpet to be swept with a broom. And beds as big as chapels to be moved and swept under—the days when furniture was furniture and bed-bearing casters were unknown.

Then there was the marketing. You carried your own basket to, and fit no small boy was to be found, from market yourself—your dollar-and-a-quarter twelve-pound turkey clicking its heels out of the top.

Men walked twenty blocks or more to work and twenty blocks home. Women made their own clothes largely; a sealskin coat and a diamond ring were true barometers of prosperity, and it wasn't quite respectable to go to a dance outside of a private house.

Were we happy? Yes! Well, we have all the new inventions, time-savers and labor-savers and pleasure-givers. Do we have more time? We don't. Why? I don't know. Are we happier? No!

The fastest thing known to science is an insect known as the deer botfly. It zugs 215 miles an hour. The common house fly goes about one, if he ever leaves home.

The latter has time to nibble at the sugar. I don't know why the other is in such a hurry. I often wonder why we are.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

Cherry-yoked with that waxen-faced stiffness of old men, who simply want to drink new life at the fountain of youth. She's so young, mother. You said so yourself—just a baby! Not quite nineteen."

"I don't want her to marry a poor man," Mrs. Lane sighed heavily. "You don't know what I've been through with Faith, married to a failure like your pa. I'd rather see my daughters in their graves than to see them go through what I've suffered. It won't be for long—he can't live many more years. Oh, I don't know what I'm saying. He's a nice friendly, polite man—did you ever see such manners?—and he's rich, Faith. She'll have everything in the world she wants." But Mrs. Lane lifted the end of her lace fichu to wipe away the fast falling tears.

"Except thrills," Faith was frankly crying, too. "And you know, mother, Cherry lives on thrills. Even if he lives only five or six years, he's certainly got every chance of doing—maybe twenty—he'll have tarnished her youth, made her cynical and hypocritical and maybe unfaithful—"

"Faith! Do you realize what you're saying?" her mother demanded sternly. "Oh, my heart! That awful pain!" she groaned, laying a puffed hand on her vast bosom, her face contorted with agony.

"Poor mother! Lean on me. We'll soon be there. Just a few more steps, dear. Shall I call dad?"

"No," Mrs. Lane gasped, letting her great weight bear down upon Faith's supporting arms. "Oh, there's the doorbell!"

But Mr. Lane had heard it too, and came from the kitchen, where he had retired to read his paper or to think heaven knows what terrible thoughts of his daughter's folly.

"Bob's here, Mother," she told the sick woman in a tender, soothing voice. "He wants to see me. I'll send Dad in to sit with you until you feel sleepy. But you mustn't scold him about tonight, or talk about it. It will just upset you, make your heart misbehave. Good-night, dear. I know you're trying to do your best for all of us—Cherry, too."

"He is old," Mrs. Lane whispered, with fright in her tired voice. "May-be—"

"FAITHFUL HUSBAND?" PRIZE STENOGRAPHER NEVER HEARD OF ONE

RUTH OLESEN MAY BE SURE, BUT SHE WON'T BE SURPRISED

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN

NEW YORK—A husband who is always and absolutely faithful? There isn't—such an animal, says Ruth Olesen, New York's prize stenographer. She doesn't hope to find a husband who will be any more so than other women's husbands she has observed in offices.

"I know men too well to expect to find a monogamous one for my very own," she declares. "Haven't I made excuses for a hundred husbands over the office telephone?"

"That's one reason why men resent women's presence in business. The office girl knows too much to be fooled when her time comes."

Miss Olesen was chosen from among thousands of applicants to officiate as "Father Knickerbocker's Secretary" at the New York National Business Show, and to represent New York at the San Francisco show, in a contest for the title, "Uncle Sam's Secretary."

The applicants were recommended by their employers on the basis of personality, tact, accuracy, reliability and experience—qualities which were valued by the bosses in the order named.

Despite the tradition that a stenographer has the inside track to a man's heart, office romance, according to Miss Olesen, is "the bunk." "Never mix love and business," she says. "It's sure to get you in Dutch, even when the man is not married. No efficient girl likes to feel that her business progress depends upon her sex appeal."

But the romance in general—that's a different matter! Ruth Olesen means to marry the first good looking, clean cut, well-bred, ambitious and considerate business man who comes along. "And if he divides his attention after marriage, well, she'll be sorry, but she won't be surprised."

Household Hints

WHIPPING CREAM
A little gelatine added to the cream for whipping will make it whip faster and make the finished product have more volume.

STORING APPLES
If apples are to be kept any length of time they should be stored in a cool place.

GOOD SUBSTITUTE
After dinner mints, dissolved in vinegar, make an acceptable substitute for mint sauce when fresh mint is not available.

KEEPING PARSLEY
If parsley becomes slightly wilted, let it stand for about an hour in cold water. If you shake off the water and put in a glass with a tight cover and place this in the ice box it will last in perfect condition for several days.

CARE OF ICE BOXES
Any food spilled in an ice box should be wiped up at once to prevent odor. It should be wiped out weekly with lukewarm water in which borax or soda has been placed.

FASHION HINTS
COLORFUL, TOO.
Very practical pajamas are made of striped tub silk and very simply trimmed with decorative monogram in bright red or green.

Miss Meusel Well Known In Appleton

Miss Lucille Meusel, soprano, who is known to Appleton people through her recitals and plays in which she took part when a student at Lawrence conservatory, will sing at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Monday evening, Nov. 22, under auspices of the Appleton Women's club.

Her first appearance here was when she was only 14 years old. Miss Rose Ellen McNevin and Miss Isabel King presented a farce comedy at an entertainment of the Sodality of St. Mary Catholic church at Columbia hall in the winter of 1916. Miss Meusel was a member of the cast.

When at Lawrence conservatory she studied piano and voice, appearing in recitals at the conservatory and in private homes. ## Sore throats need this Double-Treatment YOUR sore, aching throat probably needs the soothing, healing vapors that arise from Vicks VapoRub when it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime. And Vicks acts two ways at once:

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled right to the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing; (2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the pain and soreness and thus helps the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

VICKS VAPORUB Over 21 Million Jars Used Yearly

at least, Mrs. Meating left her desk to inquire what was causing so much commotion and exuberance among her flock.

"Aw, teacher, we're just playing Wild West show and Jesso James," a chorus greeted her.

Further investigation revealed that one of the boys had a revolver—of course it wasn't loaded, that's always so to the point of being avionic, and was their innocent emulation of the bad men of history?

Their mentor undoubtedly was—and did.

Extending her prerogatives as disciplinarian Mrs. Meating seized the "arsenal."

"Where did you get this," she inquired.

"Oh, a couple of kids found it by the roadside, but it ain't loaded, honest, it ain't loaded," she was informed.

However, the game came to a sudden stop.

Later in the day Mrs. Meating had a man examine the gun.

He shot it five times. Every chamber carried a bullet which might have cost a human life.

The school board of the district would very much like to question any one who lost a loaded revolver recently near the Sleepy-Hollow school.

Bids for the gravel, advertised for several weeks ago, were opened last week by the common council and referred to the board of public works with power to act. The board inspected the gravel pits owned by the various bidders Saturday afternoon, and awarded the contract to Mr. Murphy at another meeting Monday afternoon.

CHRISTIANITY IS GROWING IN WORLD, DR. HOLMES SAYS

Methodist Pastor Believes Greater Things in Religion Are Coming

"Christianity is not so much an institution as an atmosphere," Dr. J. A. Holmes, pastor of First Methodist church, said in his weekly sermon at the Sunday morning services. Dr. Holmes talked on the progress of Christianity and its place in the world today.

"I believe that there is more Christianity, in the best sense of the word, in the world than there has ever before," Dr. Holmes declared. "The best thought of the time is moving steadily toward a spiritual interpretation of life. If there is anything dying in the present institutional form of Christianity I have every confidence that it is only a preparation of greater things to come."

Dr. Holmes opened his speech by quoting the creed of the country house squires taken from John Galesworthy's latest novel, "The Country House." The creed is as follows:

"I believe in my father, and his father and his father's father, and the makers and keepers of my estate, and I believe in myself and my son and my son's son. And I believe that we have made the country and shall keep it what it is. And I believe in the public schools, especially the public school I was at, and I believe in my social and the country house and in all things as they are forever and ever, Amen."

"Many people have views concerning Christianity especially their own particular brand of it," Dr. Holmes said. "One would believe that from the attitude of certain so-called Christians the revelation of God in the world is absolutely static."

PROCESS OF EVOLUTION

"Christianity is being attacked from many new quarters and for this reason people are inclined to believe that the present Christianity is passing. It may easily be that our present Christianity is passing which is different from saying that all Christianity is passing or is likely to pass."

Dr. Holmes then presented facts showing that the whole program of Christianity was a process of evolution tracing the development from the Christianity of Galilee and Judea, which was vibrant with the human personality of Jesus to the present day form. The change that is being noticed now, which is mistaken by many as the passing of all Christianity, is perhaps only the process of evolution.

"If Christianity is a part of the great cosmic system it will change with every human being it touches. Therefore there are as many Christianities as there are Christians."

In China there is a distance type of Christianity which differs from that in Africa, India and other countries.

"NO HAT" CUSTOM GAINS FAVOR OF FRENCHMEN
Paris. —(P)—The "no-hat" custom hatched some years ago by Robert Eudeline, then manager of Eugene Criegel, former featherweight boxing champion, has grown very fast recently with the price of hats ranging from 100 to 200 francs. The number of hatless men on the Boulevards even in this cold autumn days is extremely large.

But opposition to the custom, hitherto confined to hat dealers, has now sprung up among government functionaries. Chief clerks in the various ministries strolling through the offices were wont to overlook the momentary absence of their assistants, providing their hats were in the rack outside the office door. But when functionaries came to work without a hat in the morning and then disappeared, the absence of both man and hat was regarded as sufficient proof to warrant the "locking" of a day's pay.

New the Functionaries Union has ruled that all their members must wear their headpiece to work.

HOOVER ASKS FOR DEVELOPMENT OF WATER RESOURCES

Importance of Waterways Is Stressed in Secretary's of Commerce Report

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C. — Secretary of Commerce Hoover called upon the nation to develop its water resources, including the Great Lakes and a waterway from the Great Lakes to the sea.

In a statement, which Secretary Hoover said he would incorporate in his annual report to President Coolidge and Congress, the importance of waterways was stressed. Failure to develop these waterways is a national waste, Hoover said.

"During the year the Department of Commerce, as directed by its organic act, continued to give active consideration to the commercial possibilities in the full utilization of the water resources of our country—inland waterborne transportation, flood control, reclamation, and power control," Hoover said. "A broad national policy is needed for the orderly development of all river and lake systems that we may not suffer great losses through erratic development and failure in coordination to secure the maximum economic returns from each drainage basin."

"Water is today our greatest undeveloped resource. Our streams and rivers offer us a possible total of 65,000,000 horsepower, and of this less than 11,000,000 has been developed. Of our 25,000 miles of possible inland waterways probably less than 7,000 are really modernized, and the utility of much of these 7,000 miles is minimized by their isolation into segments of what should be connected transportation systems. We still have 50,000,000 acres of possible reclaimable and irrigable land which, while not now needed for agriculture production, will some day be absolutely necessary to supply growing population."

"These are imperative reasons for the execution of a comprehensive plan for the coordinated long-view development of each river system to its maximum utilization. The necessary advance in rail rates from the war, together with completion of the Panama Canal, have distorted the economic relationship of inland waterways. This relationship can be restored by conversion of our inland waterways into real connected transportation systems for cheaper movement of bulk commodities and raw materials. There will be increasing demand for hydroelectric power with its saving of fuel and reduction in human sweat. Before expiration of the years required for completion of major construction we shall need more fuel supplies than our present hands will afford. True conservation of water is not the prevention of use. Every drop of water that runs to the sea without yielding the full commercial returns to the nation is an economic loss. The immediate situation, the interest of sound economy, and the provision for future needs of the country alike require full use of all our resources."

Exceptional Speed Is Not Required Of Stenographers

Speed and accuracy sometimes go hand in hand on the typewriter, but not often, is the opinion of experienced typists and teachers of the art in Appleton. And by speed is meant the records of world champions and near champions who pound out 130 net words a minute after deducting for errors from the gross number written.

Local typists are considered fast, it was said, when they average about 70 words a minute. At Appleton high school, the stress is laid on accuracy and the only aim in the senior class is to have the pupils earn the gold medal awarded for writing 55 net words a minute for 15 minutes with no more than three errors. With experience an average of 70 words may be attained by competent workers. Miss Decima J. Salisbury, head of the commercial department, said, but for speed beyond that except for professional demonstrators, there is little use, she believed.

In ordinary work, exceptional speed of more than 50 words a minute, local typists said, is not required. Unless a person is just typing as in the speed contests, there is little opportunity to make use of this rapid rate of working after it has been attained.

Word championship typewriter contests have been held since 1906. For four years, the first prize was won by the same girl, her net words per minute being 52, 57 and 55. A man was awarded the crown the two following years, his winning average being 109 and 112 words per minute. A record of 117 words a minute was established by a woman the following year in 1912, and although she dropped out of the running for two years returned again in 1915, 1916 and 1917.

In 1922 a mark of 144 words per minute was attained, and this number was increased by three the following year. The same man returned victor in 1924 with the record of 130 words a minute. A change in the standard of scoring accounted for the difference in the two years.

Latham Sholes of Wisconsin, in 1873 was the first to invent an automatic writing device which worked. In the reign of Queen Anne of England, in 1714 the idea was conceived but the contraption failed to operate. The Sholes machine was manufactured by the Remington company which then confined its work to the making of firearms.

In the 43 years since the invention, many kinds of typewriters have been made. The noiseless ones which are heard scarcely more than hand writing, the portables, these in foreign characters and others are among the modern automatic writers. A Japanese invention contains 2,125 characters, and its maker, Kyoto Supinoto, maintains an able stenographer who can write upon it as fast as upon a standard American make.

The "vest pocket" typewriter weighs only an ounce and is held between the fingers and pressed on paper. The machine writes by means of a wheel with rubber letters which special devices bring in contact with the paper. Its inventor, Dr. H. E. Wetherell of Philadelphia, declares that an experienced writer can make as many as 17 words a minute.

PICKLE INDUSTRY LOCATES IN CITY

Company Shipping About 800 Barrels of Dills to Chicago Marts

Between 600 and 800 barrels of dill and salt pickles will be the production of the Managan-Loughran Pickle company, 1506 W. College-ave, this year. This company started operation in spring when Mr. Managan and Mr. Loughran made contracts with many Outagamie-co farmer's to raise cucumbers for pickles. Approximately 100 acres were harvested this season.

In July the pickling station was constructed and hauling of cucumbers was started. While at the present time the station consists of a mere shed, plans for future development include the building of a large factory with sorting machines, and equipment for manufacturing sweet, sour and spice pickles, according to Mr. Loughran. Sorting of the pickles is being done by hand at present.

Dill pickles are packed in barrels with a mixture of brine, dill and spices. They are allowed to cure from four to six weeks and then the pickles are removed from the barrels, sorted into the various sizes and sent to wholesale dealers in all parts of the country.

Salt pickles are placed in huge vats with a brine mixture and they are also allowed to cure for six weeks. During this time it is necessary to keep a close watch on the mixture to see that it maintains an equal percentage of brine. At the end of this time they are taken from the vats, sorted into various sizes and shipped to jobbers. These jobbers then manufacture sweet, sour and spice pickles. In time the local firm plans to install equipment for making "processed" pickles, Mr. Loughran said.

At this time the company employs eight men but it is expected next year, when more than 300 acres of cucumbers will be contracted for, it will be necessary to enlarge this crew. The men are employed from July through to January. Shipments have already been made to Chicago, Pittsburg and St. Louis.

COOLIDGE TO SPEAK AT DEDICATION OF SOLDIER MEMORIAL

President Will Deliver Address at Kansas City on Armistice Day

Kansas City—(AP)—Born on the uncertain crest of post-war patriotism, the idea of a building to fittingly commemorate the memory of Kansas City's soldier dead has taken concrete form and on Nov. 11 the president of the United States will come from Washington to take part in its formal dedication.

President Coolidge then will get his first glimpse of the project which was but on paper when, in 1921, he came here as vice-president, with Foch, Pershing, Jacques Diaz and Beatty to attend the dedication of the memorial site.

HAS THREE UNITS

Only the hills then cradled the tens of thousands of spectators under a vast cerulean sky spread out before the visitors' gaze. Now, however, the memorial itself spreads over the slopes and its towering shaft, climbs heavenward from the massive walls at its base.

The memorial proper consists of three units—two buildings, one the American Legion building, the other the museum building; and a shaft flanked on three sides by huge walls of masonry. The outside dimensions of the building are 46 feet 6 inches by 93 feet. The shaft is 216 feet in height and in diameter 38 feet at the base and 28 feet at the top.

CENTERS AROUND SHAFT

The wall in front of the shaft and its buildings is 48 feet in height and 453 feet in length. Across the face of this wall will run a frieze 13 feet high and 400 feet long, depicting the march of Civilization starting from the east and from the west and meeting in America.

The original idea was for a "Soldier Memorial" to cost about $500,000, but this was superseded by plans for a monument costing $2,000,000. An association was formed, funds were raised, and the project begun.

An elaborate Armistice day program has been worked out to surround the president's dedicatory speech, which will begin at 3 or 3:30 in the afternoon.

3 REGULARS STILL INJURED AS ORANGE WORKS FOR

Snowy Field, Thought To Give Appleton Men Edge, Evens Big Game

Drifts Will Make Battle Game of Breaks, Giving Smith-men Big Chance

With three Orange clad regulars still suffering from old injuries, Coach Joseph Smith sent his Appleton high school gridmen through a hard workout Monday afternoon in preparation for the big battle of the year that will take place at Kaukauna high Thursday at Kaukauna. The local meeting was far from pleased with the showing of his boys, while the injured men kept him pessimistic over the Orange chances against the Kaws. Johnston, who is one of the best players in state high school circles, counted on to play a decided part in Appleton's battle against the Smith men, still is far from form due to his old leg injury. Hartman's hand is not fully healed and Witke, though in a suit, was forced to take things easy by his knee.

Local Man Loses to Ponzio to Make His Record a Win and Two Losses

Philadelphia, Pa. (AP)—Arthur Ponzio, Philadelphia, defeated Harry Pindle, Appleton, 125 to 89 in the first of Monday's matches in the tournament for the pocket billiard championship of the world. Ponzio had two high runs of 28 each and his average was 17 and his average 15-21.

Frank Taberski, Schenectady, N. Y., Ralph Greenleaf, N. Y. city, and Erwin Rudolph, Chicago, were in a triple tie Tuesday for the lead in the tournament for the world's pocket billiard championship. Each had won two games and lost none.

BLUE MOONS BREAK TIE WITH CHUTERS

Kimberly Blue Moons took a special match from Dick's Five of Little Chute on the Kimberly alleys to break a tie winning all three games. Previously the teams had each won a match a piece from the other. Both are members of the Fox River Valley league. The Moons won the tilt by 244 runs.

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP)—The 1927 Michigan-Navy football game will be played at Ann Arbor Nov. 12, it is announced. The new Michigan stadium will be dedicated with the Ohio State game here Oct. 22. Michigan and Minnesota will wage their traditional struggle here Nov. 21.

Ball Carrier Doesn't Deserve All The Glory

BY C. D. SHAUGHNESSY It always seems foolish to me when the spectators and the newspapers give the ball carrier all the glory. Modern football revolves around the units whose individual functions change from play to play—except that of course, the snapper-back always snaps the ball and the field general always calls the signals. Those eleven units operate as a whole, concentrated on the task of advancing the ball. The ball-carrier is merely their agent.

FATE PLAYS COBB PECULIAR PRANK

Fate played a peculiar prank in the appointment of George Moriarty as manager of Detroit to succeed Ty Cobb, since it was Cobb who caused Moriarty to sever his connection with that club.

LAUNDRYMAN IS STAR GRIDDER

How'd you like to spend a full game playing against this 230-pound Chink? Neither would we. The ferocious looking fellow with all the avoidpools is George "Tiny" Leong, star lineman on the High School of Commerce team, San Francisco. Having a play through "Tiny" is an assignment few teams care to tackle. He not rushes opponents aside and tosses the runner for a loss. With "Tiny" the laundry business is just a side line. When he says "No checkee—no was-hee," the customer never argues.

APPLETON IS HOST TO STATE PIN MEET

Wisconsin Lutheran Bowlers to Meet Here for State Title in Spring

Appleton Lutherans will play host to the 1927 bowling tournament of the Wisconsin Lutheran Bowling association next spring as the result of a meeting of the association members held Sunday at Fond du Lac. Fond du Lac put in a strong bid for the meet but gave way to Appleton, believing that such action would be in the interests of the association. The meet starts about April 15. It will be the second state meet to be held here as the American Legion tourney will be rolled on local alleys.

Appleton bowlers promised to work for the entry of teams in the northern part of the state and it is believed that the southern cities will not find it too far to send their teams.

Two Appleton men were elected officers of the state association. Lloyd Doerflinger was named secretary and T. J. Bergman, treasurer. Both are prominent in state and local Lutheran pin circles. The meet probably will be rolled on the Aid Association alleys.

Other questions of importance were discussed by the officers and delegates who gathered at St. Peter's school Sunday afternoon for a special meeting of the association made necessary by the conditions at Oshkosh which make it impossible for that city to entertain the bowlers as previously arranged. Steps were taken which it is believed will add to the fairness of the association bowling and the enjoyment of the goodfellowship features of the annual tournaments.

Ty Cobb Is Baseball's 1st Millionaire Player

Detroit — Ty Cobb, during his 21 years in the American League, has broken a few financial records, aside from the countless playing feats that are to his credit.

The Georgia Peach is baseball's first millionaire player. That is a fairly conservative statement. Cobb hasn't amassed a cool million from baseball's compensation alone; he has been mighty fortunate in his investments.

Immense tips from wealthy hero worshippers have enabled Cobb to parlay his baseball dividends in such a way that he has practically doubled them.

In round figures Cobb has made $500,000 out of baseball. Starting with a salary of $1,800 in his first year, he so capitalized his prestige and ability that he drew down $60,000 as player-manager of the Detroit club last season.

That sum was not salary alone. It included a share in the profits of the club. It is said that Tris Speaker and Cobb are the only two managers, aside from Johnny McGraw, who have ever been given a contract cutting them in on the profits.

It is estimated that Cobb's salary for 15 years as a player averaged about $15,000 per year, making a total of $225,000.

When he became manager, not only was his salary as a player substantially increased but he received a big sum for shouldering the managerial responsibilities, plus a cut in the profits.

Despite the fact that Cobb never won a pennant during his six-year regime, his club always was threatening and the fans were always hoping. The Tigers did a big business.

As player-manager Cobb has averaged $35,000 per year for six seasons, a total of $210,000.

The greatest player of all time, his fame has been such that his name has been in constant demand for advertising purposes. It is a low figure to say that he has earned $75,000 in that manner.

The sum of $225,000 earned in 16 years as player, the $210,000 for his services as player-manager, and $75,000 through the medium of using his name for advertising, brings Cobb's baseball earnings to $510,000.

A tip on General Motors which Cobb played last year brought him a profit of $150,000. He has put over several big coups in the cotton market and is one of the big stockholders in the Coca Cola Company.

Nick Altrock says if he had only what Cobb has over a million dollars he would consider himself a wealthy man. Nick may be a clown, but not at figures.

Trustees Meet.
Trustees of the Aid Association for Lutherans will hold their monthly meeting Wednesday at the Insurance building. The meeting was postponed from Tuesday because of the absence from the city of Albert Voeks, secretary. Reports of the last month and routine business will occupy the meeting.

New York—Charles Goodman, New York, won from Bobby Garcia, Baltimore, on a foul (9).

In addition to Mr. Vrooman's address, a program of music and other entertainment is being prepared by the rural affairs committee of the chamber, the committee in charge of the dinner.

Only two tickets will be issued to a family. Should any additional tickets be desired, a charge of $1 will be made. It is not likely that any more than 350 persons can be accommodated at the affair, according to Mr. Corbett. ## GOODYEAR MEANS GOOD WEAR

At last an ideal tire-chain!

Quiet and Long Wearing

Made of RUBBER

A rubber tire chain?—that's a new one! What's the idea, and why?

Well, the idea, is quietness and tire-saving and long, long wear — in a measure no chain has previously given.

And the "why" is that rubber gives these very qualities that metal never has—soft-footed, long-wearing Goodyear rubber!

That's almost the whole story of the new Goodyear Rubber Tire Chains —except that these chains have been successfully tested under the hardest sort of use and abuse.

They "made good" so amazingly under these tests that already they're selling in big volume; you'll want a set too, once you know the facts:

Quietness: There's no clanging on the pavement or banging on the fenders with Goodyear Chains. They are different from all other chains in one vital respect—rubber cross links take the place of steel.

Long Wear: Mile for mile, one set of Goodyear Chains will in most cases, outwear several sets of ordinary tire chains.

Tire-Saving: The broad rubber cross links of Goodyear Tire Chains guard against cutting or bruising of the tread, and especially in deep ruts give valuable protection to tire sidewalls.

Ease of Application: Goodyear Chains are easy to apply. You can put them on and leave them on — over mud, wet and dry pavements, or snow.

Security: Goodyear Chains employ the non-skid principle of the Goodyear All-Weather Tread magnified for maximum gripping action. Scientifically designed to resist skidding in any direction.

Prove these things for yourself. Drive to the nearest Gibson Tire Co. today and have your car equipped with Goodyear Rubber Tire Chains now. They are especially suited to Balloons.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE ERIC WATERS, young college student, kisses JUDITH MARTIN, on a bet, not knowing she is a teacher.

He proves to be the sweetheart of MYRA ALDRICH, when Judith meets at her boarding house.

Eric climbs to Judith's window to ask her to unlock the door for Myra and is seen descending by a man passing the house.

WILL WETHERELL, popular senior, takes her to a party given by EYE GERHART, attractive widow, of whom DR. PETER DORN, and the faculty, disapprove.

Eric takes her into a sunroom, saying he wishes to talk to her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VIII

The sunroom was in half shadow. Eric struck a match as they walked toward a wicker settee. "Don't want to sit on anybody's lap by accident," he remarked.

Judith paused by a window and stood gazing out at the harvest moon. "If you have so much to say to me, my dear sir, better get started. I don't intend to affront my hostess by staying in here too long, before I've been introduced to her other guests."

Eric came and stood in front of her, both hands thrust doggedly into his pockets. "The first thing I have to do is to apologize for the kiss. Of course, if I had guessed that you were you, I'd not have kissed you, for twenty dollars—no, nor for fifty." Judith said nothing.

He went on. "For two reasons I wouldn't have kissed you—first, I'd have known you wouldn't appreciate it. Second, you're a schoolteacher. I'm sorry I kissed you and I'll never do it again. Now are we quits?"

Judith yawned. "For a talking I couldn't think what you were talking about. But now I remember. You did kiss me once. I believe, at the railroad station. But don't let that worry you. I had quite forgotten it in the press of more important affairs." She grinned in his direction under cover of the shadows.

"Well," said Eric ruefully. "I knew you wouldn't appreciate it at its true worth. But you needn't try to tell me you'd forgotten it. Kisses aren't an everyday diet in the school teaching business."

Judith turned blazing eyes toward him and was pushing past him toward the drawing room they had left. But Eric laid his hand on her arm. "I also intended to be your partner in that window-climbing incident, and to ask to be released from the class in Horace. But you already know that the trellis-climbing was mere coincidence. And as for Horace—I've decided I'll stick to it. I think I'm going to enjoy it more than any other course in my curriculum."

Judith did not answer the challenge. She left him and walked back into the other room. Just inside the door she almost bumped into Myra and was about to call out some joking greeting, but the girl walked hurriedly away, keeping her face straight ahead.

Eric was just rising from the couch. As she made a dash toward chafing dish over which several amateur cooks were shrieking, Dr. Dorn was left behind. He approached Judith in rather a shamefaced way. Her first words did not reassure him.

"Why didn't you tell me you were coming to the party when I mentioned it this afternoon, Dr. Dorn?"

He looked at her uneasily. "I had no notion of coming then. I've—er—known Eve for many years. In fact since we were children. And it just occurred to me that I hadn't seen enough of her recently. So I dropped in as I was going by."

Will Wetherell interrupted. "What have you done to Myra? Jumping out. All the time you were in the sunroom with Waters she hung around the door like a restless tiger. When I tried to talk to her she told me to take my conversation and go jump in the lake. Then she ran away upstairs and I haven't seen her since."

Judith laughed. "Well, really, if your conversation is so bad, I can't see why you should blame me. Now go and get me some food."

He came back with a plate and a glass of punch. The latter he did not proffer until Judith reached a hand for it. "It's spiked, you know. Maybe a schoolteacher'd better not—" But she had taken it, with a glance over her shoulder at Dr. Dorn, who was looking more and more uncomfortable.

The noise in the room increased. Eve cried above the turmoil, "If anybody wants tea, he'll have to make it in the kitchen. What about you, Dr. Dorn? I'm sure Dean Brown would sanction one cup of freshly brewed orange pekoe."

A roar of laughter went up.

"Oh," breathed Judith, "that was vicious."

"Not at all," countered Will. He had it coming to him. Eve thinks he's here as a faculty spy. He's never come before. Anyhow, she had to get rid of him somehow."

Judith's eyes were on Dr. Dorn, who had obtained his coat and hat and was making his way toward the front door. "Good night, Peter, called Eve, and several voices followed with "Greetings to Timothy, old dear."

The professor went out without answering.

It was long past midnight when Judith sank back in the taxi beside Will Wetherell, on the homeward drive.

"Pretty good party," mused Will. "But you should see Eve at her best. Dorn's coming sort of cramped her style. She confessed to me after he left that she feared she'd been too hard on him. Seemed to think he might have come just because he wanted to be human and not to spy. She thinks he likes you pretty well, Judith."

The girl said nothing.

"Funny about that man," her companion mused. "Damm strong man in astronomy. Couple of comets and a nebula to his credit. Regular fellow in the observatory, but a perfect grandmaster on the purity question. Still, he doesn't interfere much with other people's fun."

He moved a little closer to Judith, so that his sleeve touched her bare arm. She sat quite still. The silver cloth, where her cape fell back, gleamed in the darkness of the cab. The boy's eyes sought her face.

"You're very lovely," he said. "I wish you were dumb. If you were, I'd kiss you."

Judith fumbled for her pass key.

The silver dress was hanging in the closet and Judith was sitting on the edge of the bed, wriggling her toes luxuriously after their release from the silver slippers that lay on the floor beside her, when she heard Eric's rear door open in front of the house. She looked uneasily at the silver gown, which was thrusting one fold through the closet door. Then she began to brush her hair and prepare for bed.

Pounding steps on the porch below were followed by a slamming of the front door and loud heels on the staircase. Judith sat staring at herself in the mirror, a worried frown between her eyes. Then the door of her own room burst open and in the mirror Judith saw Myra standing in the doorway, her arms outstretched against the door frame.

Judith did not turn away from her fascinated gaze into the mirror until Myra spoke.

"Well," said the girl against the door, "so it was you that kissed Eric at the railroad station." Her voice was sibilant, through sneering lips.

A wave of hot blood surged to Judith's forehead. "No, you're wrong. He only kissed me. I didn't have time to kiss him back."

"You're shameless," breathed Myra, rage choking the words. You're treacherous, too. No wonder you were so kind and sympathetic with me. You wanted to get all the dope on me, didn't you? So you'd know how to work. But I'll tell you this much—you'll fall with him as I've failed. It's nothing but misery to be in love with Eric Waters." She caught her breath for a moment, then rushed on.

"Thank God I tumbled in time, before you worried any more secrets out of me. It was the way you looked at him tonight that put me wise—that and your staying in that dark room so long. Somebody had said the girl he kissed was red-headed. But I never suspected you. Oh no, you were such a LADY—on the surface."

Judith pushed a chair against the table. The movement seemed to bring her relief. "Look here," she said steadily, "you'd better get to bed. Midnight brawls aren't in my line. Neither are men who kiss strange women against their wishes at railroad stations. Good night."

Myra laughed. "Good thing for you they aren't in your line. For you'll never make any headway with this young man. He was scornful enough when he spoke of you tonight. I made him tell me the truth about it, after I'd caught a word or two from the sunroom that put me wise. But he didn't stand up for you. Just laughed."

Judith walked to the closet, swung open the door and took down the silver dress. "Here's your evening gown. Thank you for lending it to me." She tossed the dress over the back of a chair near Myra's post by the door and walked away to the dressing table.

There was a sound of ripping. The next moment the door slammed. Judith turned around and saw the silver dress lying on the floor. There was a rent from neck to hem.

ARTERIAL JUMPING IN COUNTY IS REDUCED

Warning has apparently curbed the tendency of motorists to "jump arterials" in the county, it was reported at county highway commission headquarters Friday. A campaign has been instituted by county motorcycle patrolmen to make arrests where offenders disregard arterial signs on the county highways. Many serious accidents have been directly traceable to this form of careless driving, statistics show.

The Wages of Folly

WHEN Helen announced her engagement to Joe Ducey, every one agreed it was a "perfect match." With their wonderful plans for the future, they were as happy as could be.

Then Philip Merton, an old school-mate of Joe's, arrived. Helen was instantly conscious of the good looks and fascinating manner of the stranger—and she often wondered what there was about him that attracted her so. And as the days passed, she found a strange transformation taking place within herself—a strange willingness to slip away for long drives with Philip—secret adventures which she thought of as innocent fun.

Then suddenly she found herself whirled into a drama of smashing events the like of which she had never dreamed.

Helen's story, "The Wages of Folly," appears in December True Story Magazine. It not only shows the difference between real love and the cheap imitation, but it will grip your interest and pull at your heartstrings as only a story of real life can do. Don't miss it!

Other Thrilling Features in December True Story are:

"The Uncertain Road"—Left an orphan, while still a young girl, to grope her way through life alone, unguided by the loving counsel of those older and wiser than herself, it is not strange, perhaps, that Betty made mistakes. But even then she might have escaped the crushing misfortune that came to her, if she had followed her own instincts, when she found herself in love with her employer. A heart-touching story every girl should read.

"Baby Fingers"—Abandoned at the height of a storm on an open prairie by her worthless husband—left alone with her helpless baby—Nellie began a battle with the world that few young mothers would care to face. How she afterwards fought to protect herself and child against the wicked plotting of ruthless enemies is an epic of courage and mother-love that will thrill and inspire you, and fill your heart with tender sympathy.

Fifteen a Day Make An Ad More Than Pay

"I had fifteen replies to the Post-Crescent ad which I ran for two insertions to sell five Boston Terrier puppies. I am very pleased. Your paper is satisfactory, the best advertising medium I know of. The results were wonderful."

So said Mrs. Dewey Boyce, 1421 N. Clark street. Thank you Mrs. Boyce for those kind words. We feel that your words are living, breathing proof of the effectiveness of Post-Crescent Ads.

We hope they stimulate others into using Post-Crescent ads to sell live stock, poultry or merchandise; or to rent houses and apartments.

Our ad-taker is waiting to serve those who call 543.

A Safe Combination

In three days of mergers and amalgamations, capital combines with labor to achieve success, and color unites with symmetry to produce beauty. Even ham has to get together with an egg or two to form a breakfast.

But yet another combination exists—one that really heads the list. It consists of a piece of merchandise and a Post-Crescent classified ad. Such a safe combination yields a sure sale!

Mrs. Karl Jankke, 115 N. Harrison street, had a Combination range for sale. She combined this fact with a classified ad in the Post-Crescent—and the combination worked so well that the same day she sold the range!

When YOU wish to open the way to a sale of household goods, the combination is 543 and ask for an ad-taker.

If Winter Comes

And there's not much doubt that it will, it won't make any difference to Mr. L. W. Blackburn, 218 N. Meade Street.

It did look for a while as though Mr. Blackburn was in for a tough winter for he lost a blanket—but a warm winter is now assured him—for by inserting an ad in the Lost and Found columns of The Post-Crescent it was returned the same day his ad appeared.

The cold facts of this case are evident. When YOU lose anything, call 543 and ask for a classified ad-taker.

As Easy As "A Twist of the Wrist"

This old saying aptly illustrates the ease with which the machinery of classified advertising is started to satisfy your wants whether you "want" to sell or "want" to buy.

If you want to sell something—an automobile, a shotgun, a dog, cattle, a home, a farm—

OR IF you want to buy something, just step to the telephone. Make your wants known to the ADTAKER and your message will soon reach into practically every Appleton home and into nine out of every 10 rural homes in Outagamie County, and in many homes in surrounding counties.

U. S. Money on Top

Much of today's foreign news deals with falling currencies. The French franc and Italian lira seem to be heading cellar, they no longer buy what they formerly would.

But United States money is safe—especially in face of the fact that for a small sum so valuable a commodity as a Post-Crescent classified ad may be purchased.

Just a few lines for a few cents—and you eliminate any possibility of live stock, pets, household goods or used cars.

Mrs. H. Meyer, 502 E. Hancock Street, sold her police dog within three days after her ad appeared in the "Pets For Sale" column of The Post-Crescent.

Just one phone message will sell your pets, live stock or used goods. Call 543 and ask for an ad-taker.

They're the Berries

There's an old saying used in well-wishing—"May the skin of a gooseberry cover all your troubles."

So be it. But as far as Mrs. F. Tilly, Route 5, is concerned a Post-Crescent classified ad covers all her troubles.

Mrs. Tilly had raised a quantity of strawberries and when it came time to sell them she used an A-B-C ad, and with complete success, for, ere the sun had set the day her ad appeared every berry was purchased.

A-B-C ads are the "berries" for selling all kinds of produce. Just call 543 and ask for an ad-taker and the Post-Crescent classified will carry your message.

Over 52,000 Readers Daily

Sitting Pretty

"Sitting in the driver's seat" is a synonym for a situation where one has the advantageous position.

This being the case, the man who does the employing for The Liethen Grain Company surely was "sitting in the driver's seat" when it came to hiring a driver for their truck—after he had placed an ad in the classified section of The Post-Crescent.

After the ad appeared, this gentleman had the advantage of selecting his man from seventy applicants—and thus was able to hire a very good man.

A "Help Wanted" ad will get YOU the help YOU want!

Just call 543 and ask for an ad-taker.

CUSTOM CHANGES, BUT NOT RELIGION, SAYS MRS. NAYLOR

Young People Are Merely Stepping on the Gas Today, Speaker Holds

"Environment, custom and our way of doing things has changed, but religion remains the same," said Mrs. W. S. Naylor in an address to the college group of First Methodist church at the Weekly Fireside Fellowship meeting at 5:30 Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Naylor's address was on the subject, Has Religion Changed? About 40 young people were present.

Mrs. Naylor, who was a student of Lawrence college 30 years ago, compared student life then with today. She declared she could not see any great change. "Crucifixes of the younger generation is an established custom," she said. "As long as I can remember the older generation has declared 'The young people are going to the devil.'"

"Young people are merely stepping on the gas," Mrs. Naylor declared. "They are seeking the finer things of life and are doing it in a different way than the older group is accustomed to. They have determined that religion is not a creed or form as much as an atmosphere. The tendency of the young people in general is spiritual."

"When I went to school the international question was settled for us by the Monroe doctrine, and we accepted its authority, but today the young people who study abroad must face the international question from a different viewpoint and must form their own opinions and ideas."

Mrs. Naylor told of a trip through Italy and described her feelings as she saw the wonderful treasures in the old churches of that country. She also told of the many Italian students who are studying in America with the idea of bringing about a different international relation. They devote their lives to the cause of solving the international racial problems.

"If the wonderful solid gold vessels and altars were melted and sold, all the jewels disposed of and this money used to educate the poor people of the country, it would do much more good," Mrs. Naylor said.

Mrs. Naylor urged members to think on the following question during the coming week. "What has my student generation contributed to the religious life as a whole?"

Next Sunday Herb Helig, director of the Appleton Vocational school, will talk on Me First.

HI-Y CLUB PLANS "SELF CHECKUP"

Each Member Will Be Asked to Compare Himself With Certain Ideal

Members of the Hi-Y club will start a "self checkup" this week, according to John W. Pugh, club leader. Each boy will be given a paper containing club ideals and will be asked to check up on himself to see how high a mark he can make in living up on the ideals. The boys also will check up on every other club member in spaces on the paper provided for the purpose and faculty members of the high school will be asked to grade the club members on the way they live up to the standards.

Finally each boy's average on the entire list will be taken and then the club average. The mark of each boy then will be compared to see whether his mark is above or below the average of the entire group.

The list is divided into three columns: "Do they practice," "Do they avoid," and "Do they rate well." Under the first column is the following:

Honesty (even in collecting souvenirs), truthfulness (even in a pinch), courtesy (even to lower classmen), chivalry (to all girls), friendliness to all, reverence to all things sacred, cooperation, doing first things first, promptness, steadiness, initiative, thrift, tact, active member of church, genuineness (acting as fine as they talk in Hi-Y meetings).

In the second class comes smoking, profanity, smuttness, petting, being easily led by a gang. In the third class is scholarship, social interests, athletics, service tasks and leadership.

Attends Conference
F. N. Belanger, acting manager of the Appleton district of the Wisconsin Telephone company will attend a conference of district managers of the state in Milwaukee Thursday and Friday. Mr. Belanger will leave for Milwaukee Wednesday and will return Saturday.

FRIGHT OVER LOADED GUN CAUSES DEATH OF TWO BOY PLAYMATES

Lebanon, N. H. —Two 12-year-old boys were literally frightened to death here.

The strange tragedy occurred while Roland Gray and his schoolmate, Fred Gray, were returning from a hunting trip along the shore of the Connecticut river.

A 22-caliber revolver—the only weapon they had—was the indirect cause of both deaths.

The gun was discharged accidentally in Fred's hands. The bullet struck Roland, who collapsed, shrieking. Frightened, Fred dashed away through the woods.

A few minutes later Mrs. C. G. Austin saw Fred, wild-eyed with terror, climb on to the guard rail of a bridge which spans the Connecticut river.

Mrs. Austin hurried toward him, grabbed his coat and asked what he was trying to do.

"I'm going to jump into the river," Fred answered. Then he wrenched himself free and leaped to his death in the swirling waters 30 feet below.

Roland's body was found Sunday where he had fallen. When Dr. H. B. Hazen removed the clothing, the bullet rolled out. It had pierced Roland's coat and underclothes but had merely bruised the boy's left side.

JUDGE HAS THUMB ON DRUNKEN DRIVERS

May Issue Bench Warrant if Man Barred from Road Tries to Drive

The judge imposing a penalty in cases of drunken drivers where the defendant is forbidden to drive his machine for a specified length of time retains jurisdiction in the case and may issue a bench warrant for the person involved when reports are received that the convicted man has been driving in another county, it was declared Tuesday.

A report has reached Appleton that a man sentenced here under such conditions several weeks ago was recently arrested for alleged violation of the traffic ordinances at Oshkosh.

Judge Theodore Berg imposed sentence and Monday afternoon said that he was awaiting official notification of the case before issuing a bench warrant.

Battle Of Razor Blades Is British Fall Classic

BY MILTON BRONNER

London — "The battle of the razor blades took place in the autumn of 1925."

There was some hullabaloo recently when it was announced that the War Department was no longer going to issue the old-fashioned, long-handled razor to the troops, but instead would give them a safety razor and one blade. They would have to buy replacement blades themselves.

"What razor?" called out a half dozen members of the House of Commons at a recent two-day session. The razor turned out to be a well-known American patent.

"Why, that's an American razor!" jeered the advocates of "Buy in Britain."

Whereupon Captain King, financial secretary to the war office, retorted it might be an American patent, but it was manufactured in England by a British company not controlled by Americans.

The clamor ceased for the time being, but after Parliament adjourned, every British manufacturer of razors and razor blades got busy. They took columns of ads in the daily press and raised a hue and cry against the government.

The Sheffield Cutlery Manufacturers' Association and the Cutlery Workers' Council registered emphatic protests. And all of them urged their members of Parliament to take up the matter when it meets late this fall.

Stung by the criticisms, Sir L. Worthington-Evans, secretary for war, finally made a very long reply. He stated that issuing of long-handled razors was a waste of money, as the men preferred safety razors.

The two lowest bids were from American firms. The next lowest bid was from a British-controlled firm, which holds a well-known American patent. They make their razors at Slough in England, employ British labor. They make their blades in Montreal, employing Canadian labor and the steel used there comes from Sheffield. So that the razor outfit is 87 per cent British and 13 per cent Canadian.

The War Secretary said one of the objects of the Safeguarding of Industries Act was to induce foreign manufacturers to establish plants in Great Britain and thereby give employment to British labor.

COUNCIL STRIVES TO KEEP TAXES AT 3 PER CENT RATE

Will Have to Limit Work Next Year to Street and Sewer Improvement

If the city's 1927 tax rate is to remain at 3 per cent, little more than ordinary street and sewer improvement can be carried out next year.

Such, at least, appears to be the discovery which the common council has made after several weeks of work on the new budget.

If much more work than this is to be completed, the tax rate will have to be raised to 3½ per cent to secure sufficient funds, the council evidently believes.

Even with a 3 per cent rate, not a tries Act was to induce foreign manufacturers to establish plants in Great Britain and thereby give employment to British labor.

This provoked a fresh outburst of advertising. One firm advertised if the War Office had its way America would have the British army. It has now offered to give free to all the men and non-commissioned officers in the British army its safety razor and one blade.

And the end is not yet. For when Parliament meets more than a dozen stern British patriots are going to question the government severely.

Tanlac Wins 8 Year Battle

Former Des Moines Matron Relieved of Nervousness, Loss of Sleep and Appetite. Gains 10 Pounds.

Mrs. G. T. Rodin, Box 466, La Prairie, Ill., says: "For some years I suffered with extreme nervousness which robbed me of many hours of sleep and everything excited me."

"Neuritis and swelling in my knees and arms was almost unbearable. I looked bad and my food didn't taste right or agree with me."

"Some of my relatives told me how Tanlac had benefited them and I decided to try it. This wonder tonic cleared out my system, toned up my liver. Now I have an old-fashioned appetite and my neuritis, sleeplessness and other troubles are gone. I like to praise Tanlac."

Tanlac, made from roots, barks and herbs, usually builds health and strength. At all druggists.

great deal street and sewer work can be done next year, it would appear.

The budget for street departments will have to be kept down to a minimum, and it is not possible that anything will be set aside for the construction of a new tool house next year.

Expansion planned by the fire department also will have to be postponed for at least another year. It is believed. Erection of two or three substations in outlying portions of the city was being considered, but this idea no doubt will have to be dropped altogether.

Another method by which a few thousand dollars could be saved, and one which the council is considering, is the curtailment of plans to erect an ornamental lighting system on S. Cherry-st and N. State st. Part of this work might be carried out, such as the installation of cables and erection of a few lights at greater distances from each other, but the completion of the plans is a matter of more or less doubt.

The school board is asking for a tax levy of $325,000, according to its budget estimate filed with E. L. Wil-

LIONS ENTERTAIN FOR NEWLY MADE CITIZENS

Plans for a luncheon and program for aliens who are granted citizenship papers on Armistice day were made at lions, city clerk. The total budget for the schools is $407,387.50, but the difference will be made up from state aid and receipts from fees and other sources.

The common council will meet again Wednesday evening as a budget committee. It is expected that the budget will be completed in two more meetings.
